No, (about)	1,340,000

THE VOTE OF THE ARMY.

The city is still tranquil. The morning journals have editorial articles on the result of the voting yesterday, and comment particularly on the vote of the army. The vote of the Seventh Battalion of Chasseurs was about evenly divided. At the Barracks Eugene the result showed 1,652 yes and 1,121 no. Twenty of the Cent Gardes voted no. Only fifteen of the Garde de Paris voted no. It is reported that two of the regiments at Vincennes refused to vote at all. It is computed that the soldiers in Paris voted about as follows:

The vote of the army, as far as known, stands:

It is estimated that, without counting the votes of the arrondissements, the army, the navy and Algeria, the Government will have a majority of over five millions. The excitement has been intense all day, but there has been no disturbance whatever. The military precautions are continued.

THE MINISTRY.

A council of Ministers was held today, at which the Emperor presided. It is reported, as the result of the Council's deliberations, that the Ministers will tender their resignations to-morrow, and M. OLLIVIER will be charged by the Emperor with the formation of a new Cabinet. The Emperor has complimented the Prefect of Police for his success in maintaining public order....VICTOR HUGO has been cited to appear before the tribunal for an article in the Rappel exciting hatred and contempt for the Government.

EUROPE.

Mr. Bright—Marriage in High Life—The American Tariff and the British Iron Regions—Proceedings in Parliament.

LONDON, May 9.—The News today authoritatively contradicts the rumors of JOHN BRIGHT'S contemplated resignation from the Cabinet....The Morning Post today announces the betrothal of Lord DERBY and the Marchioness of SALISBURY.... The anticipated reduction of the duties on iron by the United States causes great activity in the iron regions of Wales....In the House of Lords tonight, Earl GRANVILLE said no further news had been received from Canada concerning the Red River affair. The Naturalization bill was taken up. The amendments of the Commons were concurred in, and the bill was passed. The House adjourned....The House of Commons Committee resumed the consideration of the Irish Land bill. The discussion had to do mainly with technical and legal points, and was of little interest. The Marquis of HARTINGTON moved for leave to introduce a bill amending the laws relative to Parliamentary elections. The Marquis of HARTINGTON examined and refuted the objections to secret voting, and explained the Government's plan, which is as follows: The returning officer shall supply a ticket corresponding in number with counterfoils, to the voter. The latter is to secretly write the number and the name of his candidate, and deposit the same in the ballot-box. These ballots at the termination of the polling, the officer shall open, and count in the presence of the candidates, then seal the tickets and counterfoils separately and return them to the clerk of the Crown. Other stringent provisions are also made against bribery. Mr. FAWCETT rebuked the Government for its tardiness in bringing in the bill. Mr. GLADSTONE replied and the bill then had its first reading. The House adjourned.

Arrest of the Supposed Murderer of Prince d'Arensburg—Infallibility—American Bonds in Germany.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 9.—One CHISCKOW, a laborer, has been arrested, charged with the murder of the Prince D'ARENSBURG. This man was once employed by the Prince. It is said the proofs against him are conclusive.

ROME, May 9.—The opponents of the dogma of infallibility will hold a conference to-day, preparatory to opening the debate on that subject in the Council on Tuesday.

LONDON, May 9.—The Times, this morning, understands that the warning to the German capitalists against the American bonds, came from the North German Consul at New-York. "The North Pacific Railway and Honduras bonds," the Times says, "were especially tabooed."

PARIS, May 9—8 P. M.—The newspapers of this city today announce the marriage at Pau of GUSTAVE LAFFITE to KATE VANDERBILT BARKER, the grand-daughter of Commodore VANDERBILT, of New-York City.

COWES, Isle of Wight, May 9.—The yachts Sappho and Dauntless are off the shore, opposite this place, and the Cambria left her dock at 5½ P. M. Mr. MARET has been elected as umpire for the Cambria, and Mr. HENRY BRIDSON for the Sappho. Mr. J. D. LEE has been appointed referee. The weather is fine to-night, with a promise of plenty of wind to-morrow. There is every prospect of a fair start at 7 in the morning. The point of departure is yet undecided. To correct a popular error the official measurement of the yacht Cambria has been verified as 188 tons by Mr. LIGGINS, of the Royal Thames Yacht-Club.

LONDON, May 9.—The English cricket season was opened at Lord's Cricket Ground today with a match between right and left handed professional players, some of whom were in America two seasons ago. The following is the score of the game as far as it progressed:

CUBA.

The Ladies of Puerto Principe Appeal to their Relatives to Abandon the Cuban Cause—The Spanish Policy.

HAVANA, May 9.—Some of the principal ladies in Puerto Principe have signed their names to an address calling on their relatives in the insurgent ranks to return and enjoy liberty under the Spanish Government.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Government has not recently received any Official information concerning the events in Cuba, nor is there anything to indnce a belief of a change of policy on the part of Spain.

Additional Executions—An Abandoned Rebel Craft Destroyed.

HAVANA, May 9.—Official dispatches from Puerto Principe represent that the insurgent army has disappeared from the Camaguey district. Gen. VARONA, chief of staff of the rebel GONZALES AGRAMONTE, and Pay-master MORALES have been captured and executed. A party of sixteen armed insurgents came to Puerto Principe and surrendered.... The gun-boats at Guajaba Key have discovered and destroyed another rebel craft. No one was on board....The United States steamer Tuscarora has arrived here to convoy the Dictator to Key West.

A British Opinion of the Struggle—Intervention Inopportune.

LONDON, May 9.—In the House of Commons, Mr. OTWAY, Under Foreign Secretary, in reply to a question of Mr. GILPIN, said the Spanish Government was fully able to subdue the insurrection in Cuba. The insurgents held no important place. The interference of Her Majesty's Government, which had been suggested, would be inopportune. He promised that the Government would not fail to seize any occasion to mitigate the horrors of civil war in that island, and it would be highly desirable to have the co-operation of the Government of the United States.

THE RED RIVER.

The Indians Quiet—Riel Proclaims Peace Restored.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Advices from Red River to April 16 state that the Indian excitement had subsided, the Sioux and Chippewas having promised to remain quiet. RIEL had issued another proclamation, declaring that peace was an established fact; that business was reviving, and inviting all the inhabitants to uphold his government.

THE INDIANS.

Precautions Against Inroads in Kansas—White Men Disguised as Indians.

ST. LOUIS, May 9.—Gen. POPE has left for Fort Leavenworth, where he will meet Gov. HARVEY, of Kansas, with the view of devising measures for the protection of the frontier against Indians. He anticipates no serious trouble, but small roving bands may commit depredations. There are, however, gangs of lawless white men on the Plains, who, dressed in Indian garb, attacks trains, and plunder indiscriminately. These the General will take vigorous measures to wipe out, and all caught will be severely punished. Next month the General will start on an extended tour over the Plains, personally to inspect all the posts in the Department, and in the Fall he will move his headquarters to Fort Leavenworth.

THE SOUTH.

The Methodist Episcopal Church South.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 9.—In the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, this morning, Bishop ANDREWS delivered a short address, advising conservatism in all actions, and to make as few changes as possible for the next four years. He then referred to the North Methodist journals and their abuse of him. He did not like the manner our editors were glorifying one another. He thought their energies should be devoted to glorifying God, and not themselves. A resolution was adopted that the Conference adjourn sine die on the 23d.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—Col. HOUGH today published a card refuting the charge by FITZHUGH LEE that Gen. THOMAS offered his services in writing to Virginia, and at the beginning of the war was strongly Southern in his feelings. Col. HOUGH uses the General's own words in regard to the slander, and emphatically denies that any letter ever passed between him and the rebel authorities.

THE PROVIDENCE MYSTERY.

Recovery of the Body of Mr. Angell—Undoubted Evidence of His Having Been Murdered—Arrest of an Employe of Deceased.

PROVIDENCE, May 9.—The Journal this morning gives full particulars of the finding of the body of WM. P. ANGELL, who disappeared on the night of the 31st of January, in the reservoir of the Wanaheck Company, North Providence, yesterday afternoon. The body had two coats closely enveloped round it, an overcoat and an undercoat, and some difficulty was found in getting these off. On the feet were rubber boots, and a pair of leather boots underneath. The face was not recognisable from a terrible gash on the left jaw, and the action of the water on the exposed surface, but the rest of the body was in a good state of preservation and of a whitish color, but soon after being taken out of the water it commenced to turn black and became decomposed. In various parts of the breast were found six revolver bullet holes. Two bullets had passed through the heart, one through the left breast just below the shoulder, one through the left lung, and two through the liver—at least these were the directions that the holes appeared to take. The left jaw and side of the face were laid open by a blow caused, probably, by a heavy club or some other heavy instrument. The thighs and lower parts of the body were bruised as if by severe kicks. The amount of $5, which sum Mr. ANGELL was supposed to have had about him when he disappeared, was found upon his person. It was the general opinion of the beholders that he had first been struck and knocked down with a heavy club behind, kicked about the abdomen in order to quiet his struggles to get up, and then the whole contents of a revolver poured into him with murderous aim. On the right arm of the deceased were the initials B. A., standing, doubtless, for BILLY ANGELL, and on the left W. A., the initials of his wife's name, VASHTI ANGELL. Word was sent to Mrs. ANGELL'S house, and the daughter and two sons came and identified the body. Capt. GROSS, Sergt. NEWHALL and Detective SWAN went out to Mrs. ANGELL'S house, last evening, and arrested JAMES FAGIN on a charge of being concerned in the murder. FAGIN was in the employ of the family as wood-chopper and general servant at the time of Mr. ANGELL'S disappearance, and has since continued to occupy the same position. By the arrest of FAGIN, to whom suspicion has long pointed, a step in the proper direction seems to have been taken. It has been stated by a man that about 12 o'clock on the night of Mr. ANGELL'S disappearance he saw a team driving at a furious pace from the reservoir about a furlong from where the body was found, and the tracks of the team, it is stated, were afterward traced back to the reservoir. The search of Mr. ANGELL'S house by Capt. GROSS and Detective SWAN, about a fortnight after the disappearance, led to the finding of no traces which could induce suspicion.

The Great Hail-Storm in Philadelphia—Hail-Stones Weighing Seven Ounces.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The papers this morning are filled with details of the damages by the terrific hail-storm yesterday. MCKENZIE'S nursery had 4,000 panes of glass broken, and the plants and flowers destroyed swell the loss to $10,000. St. Mark's Church (Episcopal) had a stained glass window, representing four Apostles, much shattered. The New-Bath Eden Church had a beautifully stained rosette window demolished. At the lowest estimate, half of the street lamps are destroyed. The largest hail-stone found measured eleven inches in circumference, and weighed seven ounces. Many serious accidents happened from run-away horses.

Miscellaneous Telegrams.

BOSTON, May 9.—The body of BARNEY BRADY, a workman at the Cambridge Glass Works, was found in the Charles River yesterday. A wound near the temple and the absence of the watch and money of the deceased, warrants the suspicion that he has been robbed and murdered. It is known that he had $100 in his possession on Saturday night.

BALTIMORE, May 9.—Suit has been commenced in the Superior Court of this city by the State of Maryland, against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, to recover the value of gold coin currency in which the State has been paid its six per cent. interest on dividends guaranteed by the Company on the preferred stock owned by the State, which now amounts to nearly $2,000,000.

MILWAUKEE, May 9.—The commission-store of Mr. SKINNER was burned tonight. An old Frenchman, named CHAVANOUR, who occupied a room over the store, perished in the flames. The tannery and curied-hair establishment adjoining were also burned. The total loss is $5,000.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The Athletic Union base ball match has been postponed until to-morrow on account of the rain.

Exciting Election at the Stock-Exchange.

The annual election of the New-York Stock-Exchange was held yesterday, and was the occasion of great excitement among the financiers of Wall-street and vicinity. The voting continued in the white-marble building in Broad-street during nearly the entire day, terminating about 3 o'clock. There were 786 ballots polled altogether, making the largest number ever cast at any election at the Exchange. Three separate tickets were running, but the fight was mainly between the two opposing candidates for President—Mr. ALEXANDER TAYLOR, who was on two tickets, the regular and independent, and Mr. WILLIAM SEYMOUR, who was the favorite with the "Union Conservative" party of the Exchange. The contest was quite close, and the result was not known for some time. The following gentlemen were finally declared elected:

President, Wm. Seymour; Vice-President, M. A. Wheelock; Second Vice-President, James Mitchell; Secretary, B. O. White; Treasurer, D. C. Hays.

The counting of the vote for Governing Committee was postponed until today. The candidates on the same ticket with Mr. SEYMOUR are as follows: Governing Committee, to serve four years—Chas. R. Marvin, J. L. Brownell, Geo. H. Brodhead, J. Kearney Warren, Warren Kimball, A. S. Peabody, T. B. Musgrave, Reuben Manley, A. M. Cahoone, J. Howard Wainwright. To serve three years—Edward Brandon, J. R. Garland, P. M. Myers. To serve two years—Moses A. Wheelock. To serve one year—Fredk. White, Chas. A. Lamont.

Committee on Censorship—Charles F. Southmayd, John McKeon, Benjamin F. Kissam, John W. Edmunds, Henry D. Sedgwick, Everett P. Wheeler, James C. Carter, Lewis B. Woodruff.

The Anti-Tammany Convention—Probable County Ticket.

In accordance with the resolution passed at the conference meeting of the five outside Democratic organizations on Saturday evening, the Committees of five from each organization met yesterday at Masonic Hall to make a county ticket which should receive the support of all those opposed to Tammany. The meeting was held with closed doors. The following particulars, however, transpired. A warm discussion arose among the members of the Committee and at last several members of the Mozart delegation, headed by Mr. CALLAGHAN bolted in high dudgeon. After their departure Messrs. WOODS, BAGLEY, MOORE, SCHMIDT and DUNPHY were appointed to confer with a number of gentlemen to whom nominations are tendered. The following is reported to be the Anti-Tammany slate as so far decided: Court of Common Pleas—J. W. Girard, Max. Goepp, J. R. Doolittle, George Tickner Curtis, W. H. Peckham and Roswell W. Hatch. Marine Court—John J. Stemler, William A. Boyd and James D. Reimert. Aldermen—John Foley, Ignatius Flynn, Royal Phelps, Andrew H. Green, Edward Schell, John Hecker, Nelson W. Young and F. E. Wing. The remainder of the ticket has not yet been decided upon.

In the evening the Nominating Committee, consisting of twenty-one members from each organization, met at the same place. Police Justice THOMAS A. LEDWITH presided.

Considerable discussion took place in regard to the seceding members of the Mozart delegation.

Mr. DUNPHY said that there could be no doubt they deserted in the interests of Tammany Hall.

A resolution to expel the seceding delegates was offered and voted down, and the matter was finally referred for action to the Mozart delegation, with instructions to report this evening.

It is rumored that late last night the Republicans formed a coalition with the seceders from Tammany, and that there will be only two tickets—Tammany and Anti-Tammany.

HARTFORD AND ERIE.

Result of the Hearings Before the Massachusetts Legislature—An Additional Loan of Over Three Millions.

From Our Own Correspondent.

BOSTON, Monday, May 9, 1870.

The majority report of the Railway Committee of the Legislature, who have had under consideration for a long time the petition of the Boston, Hartford and Erie Railroad for further State aid, was made in the House today. It recommends the passage of a bill providing for an immediate loan of $3,500,000. The report is quite brief. The Committee allude to the previous investigations into the conduct of the enterprise, and the first loans, and argue that as the Commonwealth has already a pecuniary interest in it to the amount of millions, the work should be carried through to completion, and for this reason propose the additional loan. They, however, condemn the management, saying in one portion of their reports:

"The spectacle which the Company now presents to the Commonwealth is sufficiently effective criticism on its management. Losses form a characteristic feature of its accounts, and an issue of Berdell bonds to the amount of upward of two million dollars has been permitted in direct violation of a trust requiring their retention in the hands of the trustees." And further on "The Company now presents an unfinished railroad, a ruinous account of loss and waste, a floating debt of about eight millions to be satisfied out of a treasury containing $2 and on Berdell bonds, and asks for more State aid. It is helpless. The work has been deserted from failure of means, and a well-built track of railroad is now the subject of rapid waste. The securities held by the Commonwealth have suffered serious depreciation, and this misfortune is shared by many citizens."

They conclude as follows:

"Reckoning the cost of the railroad in money and in stock and securities at their par value, with the addition of debt, we should find an outlay per mile upon which the earnings must be enormous to render adequate returns. But the judgment of the Legislature is to be directed to its value as security for a certain amount. Upon that portion of the railroad from Providence to Waterbury is an underlying mortgage for $2,063,000, with a sinking fund amounting to $240,000. Upon other portions of the railroad are underlying mortgages to the amount of $465,000. Under the Berdell mortgage, covering the whole railroad, bonds have been issued to the amount of $20,000,000. The bonds have been taken by the Commonwealth at their par value, as security for $3,000,000 of scrip. Their market value is about four-tenths of their face, and in the unfortunate position of affairs, with interest accumulating, it must be speculative for a considerable period. Their real value depends largely upon the action of this Legislature with the railroad completed and operated by sound management. The Committee are of opinion that they are good for the sums they represent, and that in a brief period after the opening of the railroad they will have gained a permanent standing in financial circles. A moderate calculation of the prospective business between Boston and New-York, via the 'Air Line,' would indicate an ability to pay four and one-half per cent. on the Berdell bonds within a year from the completion of the railroad to Willimantic. The business with the Hudson depends upon various conditions; but the conclusion that it will be fairly remunerative seems to be justified by the report of testimony and reference to railroads of a similar class. The best guarantees of the securities of the Commonwealth is the completion of the railroads. Public sentiment appears to call on us to provide for it, if it can be accomplished with safety.

Your Committee, with no indifference to the use of the credit of the Commonwealth, have prepared a bill contemplating the satisfactory completion of the railroad and the entire safety of the Commonwealth. Its provisions are clear and stringent.

If they appear to the Legislature to fall short of the designs herein expressed, your Committee ask for it no favor."

The bill, in brief, authorises the Treasurer of the State to issue scrip or certificates of indebtedness to the amount of three and a half millions, to provide for which their Corporation is authorised to issue second mortgage bonds to the amount of fifteen millions, a majority to be deposited in the State Treasury before the 1st of January next, for which certificates shall be issued by the Treasurer, which shall have the same value as the stock; and the Treasurer is to hold the stock until the State is relieved of liability on account of its loan. Before the corporation can receive any of the scrip from the Treasurer there shall be a new election of officers of the Company, and the State shall have the right to vote for eight of the thirteen directors through the Governor and Council. The report further provides that all the property of the Boston, Hartford and Erie Ferry Extension Company shall be placed under the absolute control of the Boston, Hartford and Erie Railroad Company, in such manner as shall be satisfactory to the Governor and Council. The report is signed by eight members of the Committee. A minority report signed by three members, differing from the majority, was also presented.

SMYTHE'S BEVERAGE.

Action of the Eleventh-Street Presbyterian Church—A Vote Against Retaining the Pastor.

The congregation attached to the Eleventh-street Presbyterian Church met last evening in the basement of the church, for the purpose of deciding whether or not they should dissolve the pastoral relations existing between them and Rev. CHAS. B. SMYTHE, who has recently acquired such an unenviable notoriety. Rev. JAS. THOMPSON, one of the Presbyters appointed to take the vote, acted as Chairman.

Immediately upon the organization of the meeting a protest against any further action in the premises was presented. It was signed with the names of HARMON C. HENDERSON, WM. DIACK and GEORGE DERBY. These gentlemen, on behalf of themselves and the numerous friends of their pastor, constituting, as they believed, a majority of the congregation, protested against any action being taken to dissolve the pastoral relations existing between themselves and Mr. SMYTHE. The protest was based upon two grounds, namely, that due notice had not been given to the members of the congregation, and that they were not sufficiently acquainted with the facts to vote intelligently on the question.

Mr. ROSBOROUGH, a member of the congregation, wished to know under what authority they were acting. He considered the proceedings altogether irregular.

Rev. Mr. THOMPSON said they were there simply to take the vote.

Mr. ROSBOROUGH, in a rather excited manner, called for the reading of the petition which had led to the present proceedings.

A member suggested that if Mr. ROSBOROUGH refused to keep order, he be put out of the hall.

Finally, a vote was taken with the following result: For the non-retention of Mr. SMYTHE, 40; for his retention, 29.

The Chairman, after the counting of the vote, said that the Committee would report the result to the Presbytery, who would take appropriate action in the premises. The meeting then adjourned.

THE McFARLAND TRIAL.

Conclusion of Mr. Graham's Brilliant Argument.

THE CASE THOROUGHLY REVIEWED.

What Made the Defendant Insane?

ALLEGED HEARTLESSNESS OF THE WIFE.

Court, Jury and Audience Affected to Tears.

The Charge of the Recorder to be Delivered Today.

Mr. John Graham concluded his argument for the defense in the McFarland case, yesterday, before the largest audience ever assembled in the Court of Sessions. He spoke for four hours continuously, was listened to with almost breathless attention, moved the Court, jury, and spectators to tears during portions of his address, and when his oration was finished, was warmly congratulated by many of the ladies who crowded around him, and mingled their expressions of praise with those of the gentlemen. Mr. Graham himself was so fatigued and affected when he concluded, that he could not reply to his friends, and sat with the tears rolling down his cheeks, so highly wrought had been his feelings during the delivery of his peroration.

The review of the testimony in the case was interspersed with comments upon its character, and a considerable portion of the address was devoted to an analysis of the evidence regarding the insanity of McFarland. Mr. Graham claimed that the defendant was insane from the time he left his employment in the Internal Revenue office, two or three days before the shooting, to the night on which he fired at Richardson, and that he was insane on account of his boy Danny, who, he feared, was to be carried away by Richardson. Very little importance was attached to the observations of McFarland during this period, for his mind was disordered and had no settled purpose except to find Richardson's whereabouts, knowing that where he was Mrs. McFarland was likely to be, and where she was Danny was certain to be. The "match that fired his brain" was the information that Richardson was about selling his property and moving West. McFarland met the paramour of his wife in the Tribune office and shot him, and Mr. Graham remarked upon the singularity of the fact that some unseen hand appeared to have directed the bullet so that one shot did its work. The testimony as to the time of the shooting was analyzed to show that both McFarland and his victim must have entered the Tribune office almost simultaneously, and that the former was not lying in wait, as the Tribune witnesses endeavored to show. The evidence of Mr. Nicolson was cited to prove that Richardson was prepared for McFarland, and that while the wounded man lay in the Tribune office, uncertain how soon he would die, he gave his pistol to a friend to conceal, in order that it might be said that McFarland had assassinated an unarmed man.

The testimony relating to the married life of this couple was referred to to show that up to the time these "conspirators" commenced their work the home of McFarland was peaceful and happy. The letters and intercourse of Mrs. Calhoun and Mrs. Sinclair sowed the seeds of discontent in the mind of Mrs. McFarland, and she abandoned him, "preferring to associate with the gods" rather than live humbly with her husband. It was shown that before Richardson went to the house No. 72 Amity-street Mrs. McFarland sought to remove to No. 61, where Richardson was boarding. Failing in this she procured his introduction to No. 72, and there the labson was carried on. Mr. Graham said he would "put a ball through two witnesses for the prosecution," and then showed from the intercepted letter that Miss Lillie Gilbert was the one referred to as being represented by Mrs. McFarland, on her return to the house No. 72 Amity-street, as the affianced of Richardson; also that deceased did not have a key on the night of his return from Hartford, but was admitted by Mrs. McFarland, and Miss Lillie Gilbert did not pass that night with Mrs. McFarland, as was shown by the evidence of Mrs. Mason.

The letters of Mrs. Calhoun and Mrs. Sinclair were severely commented upon, and Mr. Graham insisted that they sustained in every particular the construction that had been put upon them by the defense throughout the trial. He characterized Mrs. Calhoun's endeavor to separate the man and wife as "most inhuman," and said that it was prompted by the fact that on one occasion McFarland had affronted Mrs. Calhoun at the house No. 72 Amity-street. While counsel was making reference to the "J. R. Y." initials in Mrs. Calhoun's letter, a woman in the audience, overcome by her feelings, commented audibly, "We all speak so," referring to the somewhat ambiguous phraseology of the sentence. By order of Capt. McCloskey, the woman was promptly ejected from the Court-room. The evidence of the medical witnesses on the question of insanity was briefly summed up. Mr. Graham then showed the part in this prosecution which had been allotted to the Sage and Gilbert families. He declared it singular that Mrs. Sage should be so ready with her evidence and yet fail to recognize the handwriting of her daughter; and claimed that the Gilberts concealed Mrs. McFarland at their house in Jersey City during a portion of 1869, when it was alleged she was in Indiana preparing for the procurement of the divorce. The reason the witnesses from this family were not cross-examined was that none of them had denied that Danny was present in Jersey City. The forty-one witnesses who have testified as to the singular manner of McFarland during the period of his troubles remembered no threats, and did not see him intoxicated or drink, while the half a dozen witnesses for the prosecution have testified to both these, which, Mr. Graham thought, was somewhat singular. Counsel made a strong point of the fact that certain questions and suggestions of the private counsel must have been dictated by Mrs. McFarland, and thought it horrible that this woman should thus interest herself to consign her husband to a felon's death. The peroration of Mr. Graham was most eloquent, and was delivered in such a manner as to make a strong impression upon all who heard him.

The District-Attorney will sum up the case in behalf of the people this morning, after which the jury will be charged by the Recorder.

Mr. Graham Before the Jury—A Resume of the Facts in the Case—The Story of Wrong and Madness Retold—An Impressive Appeal.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOR AND GENTLEMEN OF THE JURY: I desire you to bear in mind, as I had the honor of saying to the Court on Friday last in your hearing, that any previous threats, or any previous attempt on Mr. Richardson's life, if such an attempt was made by Mr. McFarland, cannot affect this case, unless McFarland was sane at the time of uttering these threats, of the making of that attempt, and also sane at the time of the shooting on the afternoon of Nov. 25, 1869. And you yourselves will readily see the propriety of that principle. It might well be that McFarland was sane previous to the 25th of November, 1869, and insane on that day; and a sane act can, upon no principle of propriety, be received for the purpose of turning an insane act into a crime. In other words, to make any previous threats or any previous attempt evidence of malice against the prisoner on this trial, it must appear that there was a continuity of design from the occasion on which the threats were first uttered or the attempt first made. If the thread of the design was broken up by insanity, that, of course, would destroy the applicability of any previous occurrences to the occasion in question, and the occasion in question is to be tested and decided by what took place upon it, and upon it alone. Of course the threats of a previous attempt, if they have shown that McFarland was the assailant in that attempt, can be resorted to for the purpose of affording evidence to you that McFarland was sane on the 25th of November, 1869, and if you still believe he was insane on that day, the Court will charge you that you are entitled to exclude all previous matters from your consideration, on the principle stated, that an insane act is not to be made receivable by a previous sane act.

RECAPITULATION OF CONSIDERATIONS.

I have the honor, also, of suggesting to you two important considerations on our separation on Friday last. The first was that McFarland did not expect to meet the deceased at the Tribune office on the 25th of November, 1869; nor is there any evidence that he was expected there at all on that afternoon. Neither is there any evidence that he had ever been there on the afternoon as late as he came on the afternoon of Nov. 25, 1869. The other matter to which I had the honor of calling your attention was, that if McFarland was sane, the very last place he would have gone in order to work out his vengeance on the deceased would have been the Tribune office—that he could have assassinated him in any other place with greater security to himself, and greater certainty in reference to his act, than at the Tribune office. For you will readily perceive, if the pistol missed fire, his own life would not be worth the snap of a finger, as the inmates of the Tribune would have turned upon him, and he would have died instantly.

THE CERTAINTY OF THE AVENGING BULLET.

Another thing I desire to call your attention to is this—the certainty with which the bullet of the injured husband takes effect—and I regard that as a strong moral lesson. You often read the accounts of policemen who are fired at when they are endeavoring to arrest desperate characters. In some instances policemen will surprise burglars when engaged in their work; they oftentimes surprise them when escaping with their plunder, and in attempting to arrest them, sometimes three or four shots are fired in rapid succession at the policeman, and unless you suppose they were in coats of mail, impervious to the attack, how can you account for it in any other way than upon the principle that some unseen hand turns the bullet off. I have often myself been struck with the miraculousness of the escape of policemen under such circumstances; but in every instance where a frenzied husband acts about shooting his man he succeeds, and one shot generally finishes the business, and there seems to be a perfect certainty about the matter from which there is no escape, thus showing the extreme moral justice of the act.

SIGNIFICANCE OF M'FARLAND'S WORDS.

Now, I desire to say to you further in this connection, that we don't attach much importance to anything the defendant might have said in reference to this shooting, because we consider that his tongue was not an index to his mind. If his mind was frenzied there was no connection between his tongue and his mind. The only principle on which his tongue can speak is the establishment of the connection between mind and tongue and governed his tongue. It will be perceived by a reference to the evidence that to one person McFarland said one thing, and to another person another thing, and the reason was, there was no harmony in his statements, for his mind did not accompany his tongue. He was speaking like a mere machine. I don't attach any importance to the fact that he told Mr. Billings he was on his way to the Park Hotel, because the locality of McFarland on this afternoon shows he was on his way to the Park Hotel. Mr. Nones, according to his evidence, tried to reason with Mr. McFarland on the afternoon in question, but without any result, and, therefore, if he would not listen to reason from another, he would not listen to his own reasoning. I wish, therefore, to impress on you this conviction, that McFarland was on his way to the Park Hotel, not because he told Mr. Billings he was going there, because I maintain he was not conscious of what he stated, but because we find him in a locality with which he was familiar between 5 and 6 o'clock that afternoon, and I look to that locality as giving us the reason why he was there. It would defeat the argument in this case altogether to assume that McFarland was perfectly conscious of what he stated and that he was fully under the influence of reason. McFarland had been occasionally in the habit of going to the Park Hotel, for the purpose of meeting Mr. Elwood, a practicing lawyer, who resided there; and he rather went, on the afternoon in question, as he intended to go, to the Park Hotel as a kind of mere machine. There was no accompaniment of mind.

THREE TERRIBLE DAYS.

For two or three days, according to the testimony of Mr. Coughlin, he was entirely disconnected from business, and from the testimony of Mr. Coughlin, dated from 8½ o'clock on the evening of the shooting. They not only call no Captain of Police; they not only call no policeman from the Station-house, no Magistrate before whom he was called on the following morning, and by whom he was committed; no Police Clerk who made out his commitment, but they don't call a single associate from the office to which he was attached, for the purpose of showing that during the period mentioned in the evidence of Coughlin he was not precisely in that condition of mind which has been described in the evidence of that witness. Another piece of disingenuousness in the case of the prosecution presents itself to my mind. There is a gentleman there by the name of Westnack, who was reading a file of the paper, who must have been two feet from Richardson when he was shot, and he was perfectly well known to the employes of that office. Why is he not here? Did he see Richardson draw his pistol? I am entitled to argue in the most liberal manner against the prosecution for not producing him. His name was not brought to the District-Attorney's notice by those employed in the office. He has been there since; and, although we expressed surprise four weeks ago that he was not produced, he is not produced from that hour to this. And why is it, unless it is was so sudden they scarcely knew it was there before they were conscious of what took place afterward. It was a dispensation of God, and submission was not to be questioned.

letter was sent to Mr. Oliver Johnson, inviting himself and his wife to be present, and stating the purpose for which the assembly was to take place. The persons present were old Mr. Sage and his wife, Mr. Sinclair and his wife, Mr. Oliver Johnson, Mrs. McFarland and the parties over at the bar. Now, you will remember a very curious feature in the proceedings. Mrs. McFarland stated that she brought her father there in order that he might hear her wrongs. Now, it is clear from that, that up to the time of the meeting old Mr. Sage never knew of anything that should cause any alienation of affection on the part of Mrs. McFarland from her husband. Although his wife told a story which he must have known as well as she, yet, according to this testimony, Mr. Sage was then going to be let into a knowledge of a state of facts which up to the 24th of February, 1867, he had never known of. I want to be particular in regard to that, and I think that is the reason why Mr. Sage was not put upon the stand. Although it is fair to infer that he knew as much as his wife, it is contended that he knew nothing until his daughter prepared to communicate it to him on this occasion. This interview it appears lasted about one hour. McFarland, with a view of arresting his fate, if possible, called her attention to the way in which his wife would compromise herself, compromise her child, and last of all compromise him. She wanted to go into a statement of her griefs; for, you see, she had summoned a set of witnesses who would hear the facts just as she wanted them.

DID HE LAY HIS HEAD ON THE BLOCK?

McFarland was alone. He was a lawyer, and he knew that whatever he said might at some future period be produced against him and misrepresented. He knew that the assembly was prepared to espouse the cause of Mrs. McFarland against him, so he stood solely on the defensive. They tell you, however, that he agreed to a separation! That at the end of an hour he laid his head upon the block, and asked the executioner to sever it from his body! Now, gentlemen, I care not how high the standing of any man who comes into Court to swear to a fact like that—can a jury be found on the face of this earth who are willing to believe a story like that, no matter how respectable or powerful he may be? Do you believe, does any man here believe, that when McFarland went to this house to get back his wife—for he had done nothing to alienate her affections, and that was what he expected—that he retired from that house fully resigned to his fate, and willing that his wife should get a divorce from him, and knowing that a divorce was all that was wanting, in order that she might be united with another man. You can blow out a candle—you can put out a flame—but the emotion of love, such emotion as McFarland felt for his wife, you cannot extinguish in that summary way. Why, gentlemen, see how grossly false that story is. What is the first thing this unfortunate man does after that meeting? He begins the suit for the custody of his child—thus showing that he was a manly, fully determined to assert his marital and paternal rights. And yet they would have you believe that from the night of the 24th February 1867, he resigned his marital rights, and that he never thought of reasserting them again until the 25th November 1869, in order that he might have a plea of insanity when he slew the man who had opposed him there. Can it be true? I care not how many men come forward and swear to it—I know that it is impossible that any jury can believe it.

A BLASPHEMOUS ASSEMBLY.

What an inhuman, blasphemous assembly that was. There they were collected together on that Sabbath afternoon to destroy this man by cramming down his throat species of divorce which could be to all future time used against him. He wrote to the County Clerk of every county of the State of Indiana, asking to be advised if these divorce proceedings had been instituted. He wrote to several in the State of Illinois. From first to last he has shown that he never meant to give up his marital rights. Now at this very time Mr. Samuel Sinclair had done an act which showed that he did not really believe what he was endeavoring to impress upon your mind, and what I believe he did not believe it then; and I am sure you will not believe it now. At that time Mr. Sinclair wrote a letter to the Chief-Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States recommending McFarland as a proper person to fill the position of Registrar in Bankruptcy. This was on the 9th of March, 1867; and yet on the 24th February, 1867, Mr. Sinclair would have you believe he had decreed a divorce against McFarland for sufficient cause. We judge men by their acts, and it seems to me that under such circumstances this testimony amounts to little.

THE FIRST SHOOTING.

A few words now in reference to one of the most unnatural conspiracies ever substantiated in a court of justice. They have imported into this case what they call "the first shooting." You remember, it took place on the night of the 1st of March, 1867. Now, you will perceive that, instead of calling Capt. Caffray and the police men who witnessed this affair, they endeavor to make it tell against the prisoner by mere conversations and admissions of other persons. One witness makes an allusion to the first shooting, and says that McFarland admitted that on that occasion he shot Richardson—meaning to argue from that simple fact that he attempted to take Richardson's life, and that he meant maliciously to take it on the 25th November, 1869. Now the evidence in regard to this affair is given by Mr. Culham, that at 10:40 o'clock he heard the discharge of a pistol in the direction whence they came, and there he found two men struggling in the gutter—one on the top of the other—McFarland under Richardson—Richardson on top, holding McFarland's hand down—grasping the hand in which he held the pistol. Now they mean to say to you that from the frequency of the disagreements McFarland must have made several attempts upon Richardson's life. But the testimony of Mr. Callahan is that a ball passed near him as he was going to the scene of the struggle, showing that the ball was discharged through the exertions of Richardson in holding McFarland's hand under the circumstances stated. Now, where is the evidence to show that McFarland fired the pistol at him at all—no evidence that they were on their feet when it was fired. We have got to take this case where the evidence puts it. The men were down; the little man was under; the other man was holding his hand; in the struggle, the trigger of the pistol was drawn, and three shots were fired. Are you going to infer that McFarland fired at Richardson, and that lying on McFarland was necessary to the protection of Richardson's life? You can draw no such conclusion. All the evidence shows that the big man had the little man at a disadvantage, and that the little man had a pistol under such circumstances as in law would have justified him in using it. Besides, it is clear that the witnesses who were upon the spot were not on the same side of the street. These witnesses were on the south side and the men were in the gutter on the north side of the street; and from what Mr. Callahan says, that he was nearly shot as he came up, are we to infer that McFarland was the assailant, and Richardson the assailed? Suppose McFarland was on trial for that, where is the Court that would hesitate to say, "Gentlemen, the man shot, was on the top of the man who is said to have shot him. There was a disproportion between them; and if the evidence of Callahan be taken as anything, it shows that it was fired off by Richardson; it was he who caused that motion in the bullet which merely resulted in its penetrating the body of the witness." Now, they go from this point to the Station-house; this man is presented at the Bar, before the Captain in command of that precinct. He is then in chains—for every purpose he is in chains.

MRS. M'FARLAND AT THE STATION.

That woman comes in. She tries to rush between them. The Captain calls her to account; but she rushes in and hugs her paramour in the very presence of that man who she was determined to destroy. What an awful thing! There was a husband loaded with chains, and the wife rushes to embrace her paramour before him. What a sight! Could anything be worse than that? No such thing as that was ever before established in a Court of Justice! And where is the fellow's name said to be, "Is this man your husband?" she replied: "He once was, but he is not now." This unfortunate man was then beastly unconscious; his unconsciousness went so far that, fortunately, he was not able to observe and appreciate the injury his wife was doing to him. What a deliverance from the anguish of such a sight! You remember the testimony of Callahan, that when Richardson was moved they first stopped at No. 72 Amity-street to get some night clothing and brandy. She put her hand on the leg of this man Richardson and said, "I hope you are not badly hurt." But for this man, her lawful husband, she had no feeling. She knew not how he was, nor how he was being treated. Her only interest was for the man who had rushed into the situation in which he was placed. Can a more horrible sight be imagined than that? It was a sight which Providence allowed this man, in the unconsciousness into which he fell not to see, not to perceive.

EVIDENCE OF THE PROSECUTION ON SANITY.

In reference to the prisoner's sanity, they have introduced two witnesses. Mr. Pomeroy testified as to the letters which he pretended that the prisoner desired to sell to him, and Mr. Schermerhorn, of the American Educational Monthly, testified as to the article he prepared for that journal. But that is fully explained by Mr. Ludlow—he article then handed to him, being such a production as would probably emanate from the mind of a man as we say McFarland is.

THE THREATS AGAINST RICHARDSON.

Then, in reference to the threats which McFarland is said to have made against Richardson, we have had forty-one witnesses, who have spoke of his violent manner, but not one of them testified to ever having heard him utter a single threat against the libertine. I want you here to take notice that not one of those witnesses heard him utter these threats. And yet, a handful of witnesses are brought here for the prosecution to state that he uttered the most atrocious threats in reference to the deceased. Now the best evidence against that testimony is the fact that no account of these threats reached Richardson himself, nor was there any complaints made at a Police office. Sinclair testified to a threat—but it was a conditional one—in regard to Richardson's marriage with his wife; and the man Howell, who testified in regard to another threat, stands stamped before you as utterly unworthy of belief. We will prove to you by the evidence of two respectable witnesses that he is so perfectly infamous as to be utterly unworthy of any credit. The testimony of Dewey has little weight. He has had some trouble with his wife, the facts of which he endeavored to explain, but which you can just as well understand as he can. It is clear that under the order of Judge Leonard his wife would be without support. He has no sympathy with Daniel McFarland, who lives with them a year and a half, from June, 1864, giving Mr. McFarland the same character. You have the testimony of Mrs. Cox to the same effect. You have the testimony of Mr. and Mrs. Robertson with the testimony of Mr. and Mrs. Robertson with whom they lived as No. 23 Amity-street, and also the testimony of Mrs. Matison. All these witnesses trace Mr. McFarland down for the month of July, 1868, and all of them showing that he and his wife lived on terms of amity with one another; that they were exceedingly devoted to and fond of each other, and that they never discovered any fault on the part of this husband in his demeanor toward her.

I have had to hurry, gentlemen, through the latter portion of my remarks. I will rely upon your recollection of the evidence. I have sufficiently refreshed it in many particulars as to enable you to supply such deficiences as may exist in the part of my performance, and in fact supply such deficiences as may exist in the whole of my performance. I know that you are overcome by the length of time I have addressed you. I am satisfied the Court is worn out, and I know that I almost begin, physically, to sink under the ordeal through which I have passed.

TRIBUTE TO MR. GERRY.

I have been greatly assisted by my noble professional brother in this case. He and I had the honor to be associated on a previous occasion, when our labors were great, but in this case they have been much greater than they were on that occasion, and I feel under the greatest obligations, and it would be doing the greatest injustice to him were I not to state publicly how much of his time and talent he has spent in the preparation of this defense. Certainly, no case ever tried in this country has taken more labor on the part of the defense than has been taken on this trial, and however much credit has been given to me I feel it but the just due to the cause of truth to say of many of my performances, the honor of them, at least, should have fallen almost exclusively upon the shoulders of my learned associate. For weeks, sacrificing interests beyond conception, he has clung to this case with an interest which I have never known to be equaled by any counsel with whom I have had the honor to be associated. If in passing from the sphere of my duty on this occasion, I have gained always the same gratification he has gained for me, my gratification will be beyond all measure.

PERORATION.

The position you undertake, gentlemen of the jury, is a broad one, and I ask you think when the event first happened that you would be called upon to assume the responsibilities of such an occasion. Meet them like husbands, fathers, men. The highest interests of society are involved in this proceeding. Beware how you announce that the desecration of the marriage relation creates no other emotion in a manly bosom than that of mere manly passion or revenge. By all the considerations which hallow it in your eyes do not thus lightly esteem it. A home in ruins, how distressing the desolation. All sublunary happiness is short-lived at best. That of the family circle is not exempt. One by one its members may be summoned to other spheres, so take part in this—to put on other relations. Death may enter its portals and receive from its number its victims. In all this there is pain; but brief, endurable in any form but that of dishonor. Domus amica pro domus optima. Home is home, though ever so homely. The best home for us is that which receives us with the warmest heart and welcomes us with the most cordial hand. Inter paternus parietes, within the walls of the family-mansion—how happy, how joyous those words! At this mention does not the memory revert voluntarily to the abode of our early days when gathered around the family fire-side in which a correspondence of love and affection, father, mother, brothers and sisters constituted a little community in themselves. Who, if he could, would not be child again? To you are committed these sacred interests; upon you are riveted the eyes of an anxious public. You are to reflect in your action the value you place upon your own hearths and the affection with which you regard your own firesides. Have been sure to inform your client please remember to bear the gladdening news that they cannot be desecrated with impunity by the trade of the adulterer. Let these helpless innocents who lean upon you feel that they are still safe—that they still enjoy security. The purity of woman is not to be questioned; her virtue is a tower of strength. It has proved itself able so withstand the strongest and most persistent assaults. Still are we not taught daily to pray that we may not be led in a tempter's pit. In her appropriate and exclusive department may she ever illustrate her Scriptural portraiture, and it be the highest duties of every wife and mother to have it said of her that "she perceiveth that her merchandise is good; her candle goeth not out by night; that she openeth her mouth with wisdom, and in her tongue is the tone of kindness; that she looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness; that her children will rise up and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her; that she and her husband is known in the gates where he sitteth among the elders in the land." Let those who dare dishonor the husband and the father; who wickedly presume to sap the foundations of his happiness be admonished in good season of the perilousness of the work in which they are engaged. As a result of your deliberation may they realize and acknowledge the never-failing justice of the Divine edict, that jealousy is the rage of a man, and that he will not, cannot, must not spare in the day of his vengeance.

The Court then adjourned to this morning at 11 o'clock, at which time District-Attorney Garvin will sum up the case for the prosecution.

Closing the Police Books—Division of the Metropolitan Fund.

At a meeting of the Board of Police yesterday, final action was taken on the division of the Police Life Insurance Fund and the Metropolitan Reward Fund as required by the laws of 1870. The first of these funds, which amounts to $208,231 36, was divided upon the basis heretofore published. New-York, $182,342 30; Brooklyn, $26,889 06. Brentano's New Store.

The tide of business in this City is ever flowing upward. Among the noticeable removals is that of BRENTANO, the newsman, who from his old, but somewhat confined quarters in Broadway, has moved into the spacious new building No. 33 Union-square. Here he has a handsome store, 29 feet by 100, the counters of which are fitted up with periodicals, literature, new books and pamphlets. There is, indeed, nothing in this line that could not be found at BRENTANO'S; and here, too, can be had the TIMES, and other morning and evening papers. From morn to eve the clerks in the new store are kept busily at work, for not only have the old patrons of the establishment been retained, but new ones are constantly coming in. Perhaps one secret of this success is, that BRENTANO attends to business himself.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The latest returns of the vote in France on Sunday are up to 6 P. M. yesterday, and show for the Government, 7,126,288; against it, 1,485,188. The vote of the army is 219,300 affirmatives and 36,598 negatives, so far as known. It is estimated that the Government will have a majority of 5,000,000. A Paris dispatch dated at midnight last night says that barricades had been thrown up in the Faubourg du Temple, which were charged and carried by the troops, who fired on the people. The other quarters of Paris were in a tranquil state. The English papers regard the result as a foregone conclusion....VICTOR HUGO has been cited to appear before the Court to answer a charge of publishing, in the Rappel, an article exciting hatred and contempt for the Government....Private letters from Paris, received in Washington, bring the information that PIERRE BONAPARTE has really made arrangements to visit this country next month....The yachts Sappho and Cambria were off Cowes, England, yesterday afternoon, with a prospect of a favorable wind for a start at 7 o'clock this morning....The betrothal of the Earl of DERBY and the Marchioness of SALISBURY is announced....The London Daily News authoritatively contradicts the rumors of Mr. BRIGHT's intended resignation....The Naturalization bill passed the House of Lords last night....A laborer named CHISCKOW has been arrested in St. Petersburg on suspicion of murdering the Prince D'ARENBERG....The opponents of the Infallibility in the Council were to hold a conference in Rome yesterday, preparatory to the opening of the debate today.

CUBA.

A Havana dispatch says that some of the leading ladies in Puerto Principe have signed an address to their relatives in the Cuban army, urging them to return and accept the liberty offered by the Spanish Government. In the British House of Commons, in reply to an inquiry, it was stated last night that the Spanish Government was fully able to suppress the Cuban insurrection, and that the interference of the British Government would be inopportune; also that any opportunity to mitigate the horrors of the civil war would be taken which presented itself, and that the co-operation of the United States to that end would be desirable.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate yesterday the Artificial Limb bill was reported from the Military Committee with an amendment. A resolution recommending the construction of a harbor of refuge at Block Island was adopted. A bill was introduced requiring the annual publication of the amount of interest due on certificates of stocks issued by the United States, dividends, deposits and interest accruing from other sources, which have been unclaimed for two years. Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, was permitted to call up the bill to reduce taxation, in order to afford him an opportunity to speak upon it, in view of his premeditated absense when the subject shall be considered. He spoke two hours and a half, directing attention to the subject of dispensing with direct taxation and the adoption of a tariff for the purpose of revenue and protection. The bill to extend the time for presentation of claims for bounty, under the act of July 20, 1866, was reported with amendments. The Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation Bill was taken up and amendments reported by the Committee on Appropriations were agreed to. They increase the appropriations for the Assistant Treasurers at New-York and Philadelphia. The amendment to reduce the appropriation for the Bureau of Education was debated at length, and the question was raised of the advisability of continuing the existence of that Bureau and the Bureau of Statistics. Without action the Senate took a recess until 7½ P. M. At the evening session the principal business was the Appropriation bill, several amendments to which reported by the Committee, were agreed to, and the Senate adjourned.

The House, owing to a prevailing understanding among the members that no session was to be held, yesterday adjourned without transacting any business.

GENERAL.

Mr. JAMES PLATT, President of the Lake Ontario National Bank, formerly State Senator, and the first Mayor of Oswego, died in that city on Sunday, at the age of eighty-three years. He was a son of Judge ZEPHANIAH PLATT, one of the leading men of the State during the Revolution, after whom Plattsburg was named.

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in session in Memphis, Tenn., adopted a resolution to adjourn sine die on the 23d inst.

The Committee of the Massachusetts Legislature on the subject of aid to the Boston, Hartford and Erie Railroad, reported in favor of issuing $3,500,000 in scrip on second-mortgage bonds to the amount of $25,000,000, a majority to be deposited in the State Treasury before Jan. 1, 1871, for which certificates shall be issued of the same value as the stock, the Treasurer to hold the stock until the State is relieved from liability. Before the delivery of the scrip an election shall be held for thirteen directors, of whom the State shall elect eight through the Governor and Council.

TINA HENRY, a colored woman, died suddenly in Poughkeepsie, on Monday, and Coroner ANDREWS held an inquest, the jury being composed entirely of colored men. The verdict was disease of the heart.

A Saratoga dispatch says Mr. JOHN W. THOMPSON, President of Ballston Spa Bank, and other holders of the preferred stock of the Erie Railroad, have sued for the dividends for two years. A change of venue was denied, and the case will be tried in the Special Term.

The dwelling of DARIUS TAYLOR, at Methuen, Mass., was robbed by burglars on Saturday night, of $2,200. Three persons were arrested on suspicion.

Hon. JAS. T. AUSTIN died at his residence, at Boston, yesterday, aged eighty-six years.

A Concord, N. H., dispatch says it has leaked out that the Concord Railroad Ring have offered Gen. B. F. BUTLER a fee of $1,000 as a retainer to attend the annual meeting of the corporation, and aid them in breaking up the contract made by the present directors with the Northern Road.

Hon. LAWRENCE BRAINERD, of St. Albans, Vt., died yesterday morning at the age of eighty-six. He was for several years the candidate of the old "Liberty Party" for Governor of Vermont, and in 1854 was elected to the United States Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator UPHAM.

Nearly one-half of the town of Fincastle, in Virginia, was burned to the ground on Friday night. The Court-house was saved.

At the charter election in Morristown, N. J., yesterday, Mr. SAMUEL S. HALSTED (Rep.) was elected Mayor by a majority of 69 over Mr. JOSEPH W. BALLANTINE, (Dem.) The gain to the Republican Party this year is two members. The Common Council is now entirely Republican.

The Union Republican General Committee met last evening and resolved on holding a public meeting to ratify the State ticket. Committees were also appointed to meet and confer with the German and colored Republicans.

King Caucus at the Wrong Time.

It is proposed to hold a caucus of all the Republican members of both Houses of Congress, for the purpose of settling the issues of the approaching elections, and deciding upon the tactics to be adopted. With all due deference to the gentlemen having the matter in charge, we must suggest that the movement is not only premature, but that in the present condition of affairs it would be likely to prove mischievous. The idea of shaping and controlling the political action of the country by Congressional caucus was feasible in former times, and was regularly acted upon. Campaigns were mapped out, and Presidential candidates were brought forward and elected in that way; but all this happened when the country was comparatively undeveloped, and its political issues and necessities were positively defined. Parties in those days were also more thoroughly organized and disciplined, and the spirit of independent political thought and action which is now at least striven for in many quarters had not been generally evoked.

During the war, the sharp and constantly recurring exigencies of political life justified the machinery of the Congressional caucus, and there is no doubt that it worked well in a great many instances. Yet it was often carried too far, and ultimately became odious, not only to Congress itself, but to the people at large. The experience of the last few years has made the system so unpopular that it will never be revived to any great extent, or with any prospect of efficiency, in the Republican Party. There are several controlling reasons why King Caucus cannot be again elevated into a despot. The whole political situation is changed, and the country is in a transitional state with regard to the issues of the future. The idea that the Republican members of Congress can settle those issues months beforehand, or even wisely plan the November elections in the States, can only be entertained by visionaries.

The utmost that Congress can properly do in the proposed caucus is to settle its own policy, and clear away the conflict of sentiment which has been developed during the present session. In this way it may exercise a powerful influence upon the events of the future, and strengthen the party by consolidating it. Beyond that point it should not attempt to go. The tactics of the several State campaigns will best be settled at home without any central interference, or attempt at interference. We are surprised that so astute a politician as Senator MORTON, who is said to be the author of the new caucus movement, should not have seen that it is precipitate and unwise. Reflection will probably convince him that in times like the present the best course is to let the circumstances of the hour shape the policy of the party, and to conform to present requirements with a cautious regard for the probable influences of Congressional action.

It is reassuring to know that there are many members of both Houses of Congress who disapprove of the present call, and who perceive the mischief which, if persisted in, it may involve. We trust they are sufficient in number to defeat the proposed caucus, and that, for the present, at least, the whole scheme will be abandoned.

Red and White.

At the outset of his Administration President GRANT spoke in terms of doubt and anxiety, in his Inaugural Address, of the policy to be pursued toward the Indians. He had one broad and indisputable fact to start from. All previous policies had been failures. For eighty years the grand item of cost in the annual appropriations of Congress has been for the army. For nearly the whole of that time the only use for the army has been to protect the frontier, and so sustain the advancing march of civilization to the Westward. This alone implies that the Government intended—indeed could not prevent—the absorption of the lands occupied by the aboriginal race, and, to cover the apparent injustice, Government adopted the plan of "extinguishing the Indian title" by purchase, and then placing the various tribes upon reservations, where they received annuities, and became as much pensioners of the United States as the last Revolutionary soldier. In every instance this extinguishment of title was compulsory. It cost thirty millions of dollars to clear the Seminoles out of Florida. The Cherokees and Choctaws left Georgia with bayonets behind them; and in all cases where the relative force of the Indians was sufficient to give a hope of successful resistance, there was a war before the removal was accomplished.

Throughout this process,—which has now been going on two hundred years, since the wars of the Pilgrim Fathers and the Pequods, and which has advanced its conquests until the vanguard of civilization rests against the Rocky Mountains,—one condition precedent has always been avowed by both parties. The coexistence of the two races in close contact is impracticable. It is not a prejudice of race in the sense in which we speak or think of the negro, but an incurable political prejudice, a strong refusal on the part of both to adapt themselves to one another, so that they cannot live peaceably in any social relation, save in exceptional cases which are only numerous enough to prove the rule. Here lies the essential difficulty in the Indian question. There is an incompatibility of temper. The Indian, unlike the Negro, refuses to accept civilization on any terms, and has the enterprise and courage to insist that he will live his own life in his own way; and that is a way which is in fatal conflict with the age and its movements. He is fighting an irresistible power, but not ignorantly, for he looks to his final defeat and the extinction of his race as a certainty of the future. He accepts the consequences of his own logic, and stands in sullen defiance of destiny.

This is a terribly difficult problem. A year ago Government resolved upon a modification of its previous policy toward the Indians. The first change was to be honesty itself, to appoint good agents, and pay the annuities promptly. The supervision of this was intrusted to a number of Christian gentlemen, whose names are synonyms of honor. The next was to make new treaties and herd the Indians upon reservations, where the Quakers were to change their hearts and make farmers of nomads. It is a pet experiment, which has been tried for a century, and has had two or three partial successes. The third idea was to employ the army to drive the different tribes into the reservations assigned them, and then put a cordon around them, as much to keep "bad white men" out as to keep the Indians in. The weak points in this programme are, first, that the Indian has no true claim to be treated as a pensioner; second, that he will not be made a farmer; third, that if he has any right in the soil whatever, it is in the soil of his ancestors, and not in any distant reservation to which he is driven, and in which he is "corraled" by SHERIDAN's cavalry. We have omitted a last condition in this design. It was that of swift, sure, and terrible punishment for any violation of its terms.

What is to be done? We have confined ourselves to a plain statement of the difficulties of the question—its inherent possibilities of reconciliation. If the scheme of 1869 is a failure, we confess that we have nothing better to suggest than the tentative policy of Commissioner PARKER. As long as we can feed instead of fighting, the former is the cheaper plan of the two; and if the objection be made that our national dignity is insulted by paying ransom money to our native brigands, we reply that any army officer would cheerfully sell out his share of the honors to be gained in Indian warfare for a glass of grog, and the nation need not be more sensitive. But when feeding fails, as it has done with the Sioux, there is no way other than fighting. In the constant attrition of the races, the final victory is not doubtful. It is a sad affair at best.

The Voice of the French People.

The vote on the French plebiscitum terminates as was generally expected. The aggregate majority in its favor throughout France is about six millions, while even in Paris nearly 140,000 voted "Yes." The total vote appears to be somewhat smaller than upon any previous occasion on which NAPOLEON has appealed to the people, and this fact may be interpreted as indicating that political indifference which has long been observed among the rural classes in France. At all events, the French nation has formally accepted the scheme of its Emperor, and has declared that his dynasty is to be permanent in France—whatever such an expression of opinion may be worth. The decision will have no very great effect in Europe, for it was "discounted" beforehand. The families which have watched from their exile for the growing unpopularity of NAPOLEON find that their hopes must be virtually relinquished, at least for some years to come.

One thing must be remarked in respect to the manner in which the vote was taken. It was evidently perfectly fair and unrestrained. There was in Paris an immense display of military force, but its purpose was to repress disorder and not to intimidate the people. With the city full of soldiers, about 183,000 men went to the polls and voted against the Emperor's wishes. That, certainly, does not look like a wholesale system of coercion. The truth is, that the responsible classes of Paris, the moneyed and business interests, are upon the Emperor's side, as the representative of order and the law. The same fact may be noticed in other large cities, while the rural districts love tranquillity, and are little moved by the turbulent politics of the capital. On the whole, France could scarcely be expected to vote in favor of revolution, and everybody knows enough of the character of NAPOLEON to be aware that he could not be moved from his position without a revolution. He is not the sort of man to put on a disguise and fly to England under the name of "Smith," as LOUIS PHILIPPE did. The "irreconcilables" may continue to hatch conspiracies, but they must see at last that the national sense is against them, and that the people desire that kind of liberty which has no sympathy with chaotic experiments.

The Plea of "Insanity" in Law Courts.

Gov. ALCORN, of Mississippi, in his recent message to the Legislature, deals with a subject which is attracting more and more attention, both at home and abroad. We refer to the proper mode of dealing with the plea of insanity, when offered in defense to a charge of crime, and especially of murder, or in impeachment of the validity of wills. At present it is passed upon, in criminal cases, by an ordinary jury, which may be, and often is, composed of persons of very limited education, and possessing not the slightest familiarity either with physiology or psychology; while in will cases a Judge who may or may not have studied the phenomena of mental disease decides the difficult point. It is supported by physicians summoned and paid by one side, and controverted by witnesses summoned and paid by the other. These witnesses, too, are selected either because they were known to have already formed certain opinions on the matter in dispute, or because they have been engaged to look into it by persons whose interest it is that they should reach certain conclusions. Evidence of this kind would be enough to confuse scientific Judges, devoted to the study of this class of questions; it is certain to confuse mere lawyers and jurymen.

It has to be borne in mind, too, that the theory that insanity is physical disease, and that wickedness is the result of physical taint or imperfection, has gained acceptance of late years among a very large class. The more it gains ground, the oftener will the plea of insanity be set up,—and indeed the sanity of all persons who do things that people usually avoid will be questioned. It therefore becomes more and more desirable that scientific machinery for the trial of cases of insanity should be set up, instead of leaving them to be determined as now by the efforts of two sets of opposing opinions, or by Judges, to whom the brain and everything relating to it is a complete mystery.

Gov. ALCORN proposes to improve on the present system by remitting all pleas of insanity set up in criminal cases to the decision of the Court of Chancery, and treating the ruling of the Court on this point as final, and, if adverse to the plea, as a complete bar to its subsequent use before a jury. This would, no doubt, be a great improvement on the present system, but the plan does not go far enough. The Judges of the Court of Equity would be nearly as dependent on the testimony of medical witnesses produced by the parties as the jury now is, and medical witnesses produced in this way would, no matter how honest or able, be open to just the same objections as ever. When one party heard that a doctor had been summoned to give an opinion, he would go and hunt up another doctor to give a different opinion, and the effect on the Court would still be to bewilder counsel. What is wanted is not medical witnesses but medical Judges, chosen by the State, and acting for the State just as the legal Judges do. If, when a point of law had to be decided, lawyers were summoned on each side to appear before a doctor who knew nothing about law at all, to swear what in their opinion the law was, and the doctor was left to determine it as best he could, on the foundation of their opposing views,—it would be considered a great absurdity, and call forth a good deal of laughter; and yet what happens in causes, both civil and criminal, when insanity is pleaded, is somewhat analogous to this. The whole subject of brain disease, of the relation between the brain and the mental and moral character, is one of extraordinary intricacy, but one which of late years has been studied with the greatest diligence by a large body of scientific men in all civilized countries. New light is nearly every day thrown on it by observation and experiment. It has now, too, a literature of its own of considerable bulk, in which the results of this observation and experiment are set down; and nobody is fit to express an opinion about insanity in any case involving either life, liberty, property, or reputation, who is not only an investigator in this field himself, but is familiar with the results of the investigations of others.

The State should, therefore, have in its pay a body of medical Judges, either sitting apart, or acting as assessors of the civil and criminal Courts when called upon; and upon all pleas of insanity their decision should be final, and should bind the lawyers. The testimony they should act on should either be the result of their personal examination of the alleged lunatic, or the description by medical witnesses of his physical condition,—or rather of the observable signs of his physical condition,—and not the conclusions of medical witnesses, deduced from those symptoms. It should be for the Judges, then, to say whether certain ways of acting, or a certain state of the pulse, or look of the eye, did or did not indicate insanity, and not for the doctors employed either by those interested in sustaining the plea or upsetting it.

The subject has already received a good deal of discussion in Europe, and that it has not received more here is due not so much to its coming up in our Courts with any less frequency, as to the smaller amount of attention which we have of late years paid in this country to judicial reform. As a matter of fact, we believe insanity is oftener pleaded here, in answer to all sorts of accusations, than it is in any European country—largely owing to that greater faith in the influence of circumstances on human conduct which is at the bottom of much of the pity and sympathy for people in "trouble," which is so marked a characteristic of American society. It is likely, too, to be pleaded still oftener; for there seems to be little doubt that cases of real and undoubted insanity do increase in number, and persons who are frequently sane will oftener seek to escape punishment for their crimes under cover of the plea of insanity. In the present state of the law the facilities for shamming lunacy for criminal purposes is very great, and that the community does not suffer more in consequence is due largely to the high character of the medical profession.

The News from Cuba.

The letter which we publish elsewhere from our Havana correspondent, whose information is always thoroughly trustworthy, will be read with special interest at a time when public attention is once more fixed upon Cuban affairs. In the first place, he points out that although the news from the Camaguey district, where the insurgents were strongest, and where the Captain-General has his head-quarters, has latterly been unfavorable to the cause of independence—yet it would be wrong to attach too much importance to the circumstance. All the news is filtered through Spanish channels, and the authorities take very good care that nothing shall be published which has a tendency to discourage the partisans of Spain. It is the old story of the man painting his conflict with the lion. In the picture the beast always had the worst of the encounter; but an old lion who saw it was shrewd enough to suggest that if he could turn artist for once, the man would not come off with such flying colors. In this case it is a pity that we cannot hear the lion's side of the story in this Cuban struggle.

The Havana papers never contain any independent news about the war, and "special correspondents" have little or no opportunity for the exercise of their skill. Some Spanish documents recently published assert that an easy victory was gained over 800 Cubans by a column of Spanish troops, and that all manner of intriguing was going on in the ranks of the Cuban forces. Several small parties of insurgents had surrendered, and prominent leaders were said to be quitting the field. There can be little doubt that the motives of Gen. JORDAN's withdrawal have been either misunderstood or deliberately misrepresented at Havana, and our correspondent does but repeat the rumors which prevail there on the subject. One fact which he makes known to us throws a great light on the circumstances which preceded the death of Gen. GOICOURIA. A packet of papers was found, containing, among other things, a passport to the General, and his appointment as Ambassador to Mexico. A sharp pursuit of the Envoy was immediately made; and we now know, although our correspondent did not, that it was successful, and that the unfortunate object of it laid down his life in the cause which was so dear to him.

The bitter feelings which have now been excited in this long contest are evidently destined to lead to scenes of greater horror than ever. Women and children are no longer safe. The conditions of the war are so unusual that it would be unwise to predict success for either side, but there can be no uncertainty about the propriety of the United States Government using all its influence to put an end to hostilities. It has tried several expedients without success, but this need not discourage future efforts. It would be a great and memorable event in Gen. GRANT's Administration if Cuban independence could be secured without involving this country in any difficult complications abroad.

Hail-Storms.

The great hail-storm in Philadelphia, on Sunday, was in some respects remarkable, and did much damage, but it has often been far exceeded in violence and destructiveness. In Jackson, La., in 1834, a fall of hail not only beat down houses and trees, but killed numbers of cattle, although it lasted for only nine minutes. During a storm in Germany, described by the Abbé MAURY in a paper read before the Royal Society in 1798, hail-stones fell that weighed eight pounds; and there seems good evidence that in the storm of July 24, 1832, at Tussi, a single hail-stone was found that weighed fourteen pounds, and that one at least passed through the roof of a house. HEYNE's grave statement that a hail-stone fell in India during the reign of TIPPOO that was of the size of an elephant, is incredible; but that there have been many hail-stones large enough to destroy the life of either men or animals, is certain. During the early days of California there was a story of a hail-storm having killed every person in a little mining camp in the mountains save one poor fellow, who escaped, much bruised and hurt, to tell the tale. Some meteorologists have supposed that ships have been sunk by the sudden weight of these frozen missiles, and that catastrophes attributed to contact with mountains of ice have indeed been caused by that substance, but coming from a vertical rather than a lateral direction.

Fortunately for mankind, hail-storms are commonly not only limited in duration, but confined to very moderate areas. That which visited Philadelphia does not seem to have been heard of elsewhere. The great French storm of 1788, considered, we believe, the most severe on record, extended in two parallel lines—one of five hundred, the other of six hundred miles in length; but the mean breadth of each was only nine miles, and this instance is accounted altogether unusual and phenomenal. Sudden changes of weather, it would appear, ought, philosophically speaking, to produce these storms, since they are occasioned by the rapid freezing of the water held in suspension in a warm current of air on contact with a cold current in a higher region. Still, although our climate is so changeable, and the thermometer so swiftly capricious, especially in the Spring—and although hail-storms are in general more frequent in temperate than in tropical regions—we seem to escape with a very small proportion of them. Other regions where the temperature is much more equable, the south of France for instance, are on the other hand much oftener exposed to these visitations. Our comparative immunity on the Atlantic coast is perhaps due to the absence of lofty mountains, which are found to be strongly conducive to the formation of hail.

Not a little importance must be attached to the bill recently introduced in the Senate by Mr. SHERMAN for the reduction of taxation. It is the result of much earnest consultation, and a careful study of the whole subject. It embodies substantially the policy put forward by Hon. DAVID A. WELLS, Special Commissioner of Revenue. It proposes to make a reduction amounting altogether to forty-three million dollars, which is thirteen million dollars more than was agreed upon early in the session, and which, we are confident, is not too much. The schedule retains the income-tax at three per cent., and abolishes the tax on legacies and successions altogether. It is to be hoped that the bill will pass substantially in its present form, and we are assured that there is a fair prospect that it will. There is a report from Washington, which we can hardly credit, that the Senate will content itself with the adoption of Mr. SHERMAN's bill, and will not consider the Tariff bill this session, even should it pass the House.

Senator HARDENBERGH received a very high compliment yesterday from the merchants of our City, for his course in regard to the canals during the session just closed at Albany. It is seldom that the efforts of public men are appreciated in so satisfactory a manner. As Chairman of the Senate Committee on Canals, Mr. HARDENBERGH was greatly instrumental in securing the passage of the various acts which now form the basis of the future canal policy of the State, and from which the most advantageous results may be anticipated. The proceedings at the Produce Exchange yesterday were not only a graceful recognition of a faithful public servant, but also a demonstration of the unanimity of sentiment which prevails among commercial men, in regard to the importance of immediate action to arrest the diversion of trade from our City.

Gov. SENTER has issued a proclamation announcing the ratification of the new Constitution of Tennessee by a majority of 54,268. The Convention which framed the new instrument assembled at Nashville on the 10th day of January last, and completed its labors on the 23d of February. Its work was submitted to the people on the 26th of March, and is now the organic law of the State. This quickness of action is in marked contrast with the result of a similar effort in this State. Our Convention wasted months in a "weak, washy, everlasting flood" of debate, which finally ended in nothing but the adoption of the Judiciary article as an amendment to the old Constitution.

Postmaster CRESWELL would be able to reduce letter postage from three to two cents per half ounce if the franking business were abolished. It would manifestly, therefore, be greatly to the advantage of the public if the Senate passed the Bill, which the House sent to it, carrying out the proposed reform. But Senators do not like the idea of paying the postage on their own letters. The bill is to be quietly strangled. The public cannot reasonably expect to enjoy relief at the expense of its self-sacrificing representatives in Congress.

A Chicago journal thinks the Republican Party is "sorely in need of a future," or, in other words, that its chief necessity, just at present, is the development of a broad and symmetrical policy upon which the party can be nationalized. This remark is just, albeit it expresses a Democratic doubt that the party will successfully solve the problem before it. These valetudinarians are unfounded. A party which has accomplished so much, and in so short a time, must have sufficient vigor left to make all the necessary preparations for pushing its victories. The Republicans will secure a future, and a very brilliant one. On the other hand, the Democratic Party not only needs a future, but a present. It has a past which it had far better be without, and which it would gladly bury in oblivion.

Mr. O'NEILL's bill for the appointment of Shipping Commissioners, to superintend the shipping and discharge of seamen engaged in American merchant vessels, would deal a heavy blow at a class of men whose practices have been tolerated too long. Of all the helpless mortals on earth, poor Jack is usually the worst off; and he consequently falls a prey to harpies who rob him when he lands, and then sell him to some skipper who carries him off to sea. The bill, among other excellent provisions, creates a system by which wages are paid and engagements made with an official sanction. The Captain is bound to respect the seaman's rights, and the plan of giving certificates is an incentive to faithful duty on the part of the crew. There are hardly any of the dangers to which sailors are peculiarly exposed when on shore which this bill does not mitigate, if not absolutely remove. The section which places appointments in the hands of the United States Circuit Judges is a good one, and would seem to free those appointments from the stigma of being made on merely political grounds.

The Evening Mail quotes our statement that "the female suffrage agitation makes no visible progress," and asks whether we "read last week's dispatches from England." We explained, at the time the dispatch referred to arrived, that the Bill for enabling women to vote in England had only been pushed to a second reading in a thin House, and on the particular day of the week which has been assigned to crotchetty members. The incident was of no significance whatever in connection with the fate of the bill, which is certain to be rejected on a third reading—if ever it came out of Committee. Therefore, it is true even of England that female suffrage makes no progress—but in our remarks yesterday we were referring not to England, but to this country.

Our English correspondent alludes in a pleasant way to the "Frenchified" character of most matters belonging to the shop-keeping and social world of London—an ancient state of affairs, which will probably continue as long as men and women have a strong love of elegance and ornament. We also have a French nomenclature for many articles in daily use, but the fashion is carried too far when it gives foreign names to what is natural and territorial. For instance, we are calling our chief municipal avenues and roadways Boulevards,—a term too peculiarly Parisian to deserve such American prominence, and almost as outlandish as Hippodrome would be. It argues a curious poverty of invention when we cannot find words at home for things belonging to the ground we occupy.

WASHINGTON.

Quiet in Senate and House—Bills from the Commerce Committee—The Howard Investigation—Gen. Sheridan on the Indians—The Georgia Bill—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Contrary to general expectation a quorum of members of the House was present at noon today. Immediately after the reading of the journal, Mr. ALLISON moved an adjournment, which was carried, against the opposition of Gen. FARNSWORTH, by a vote of 77 to 58. The hall looked as clean as a new pin, the green carpet having given place to white new Indian matting. In the Senate, today, Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, made a high protective speech, which, although able, and interesting from his standpoint, had the effect of sending a good many members to their committee rooms. At its conclusion the Executive and Legislative Appropriation Bill was taken up, and in the afternoon, when a recess was taken, more than half of the bill had been acted upon.

SECURITY OF LIFE ON VESSELS.

The bill which has passed the Senate for the better security of life on board of vessels propelled by steam, and which is now on the Speaker's table, will be considered by the Committee on Commerce this session. The Subcommittee who have charge of it will be called this week. It codifies all the Steam-boat laws since the Initial act of 1838, and affects almost everything entering into the composition of a steam vessel. The project to connect the Mississippi River and Lake Michigan by the Sac and Wisconsin Rivers, will be reported favorably by the Sub-Committee on Commerce to the Full Committee, and probably by them to the House. It will require an appropriation of upward of four millions to complete the work, so that there is not much chance of its completion for some years to come.

THE HOWARD INVESTIGATION.

The investigation of the charges made by Mr. FERNANDO WOOD against Gen. HOWARD, of the Freedmen's Bureau, was continued this morning by the House Committee on Education and Labor. CHARLES PERKINS was examined, and testified that he had the contract for furnishing sand, when the barracks east of the Capitol were being erected, at the rate of $6 45 per 100 bushels, but his contract was set aside by Gen. C. H. HOWARD, who made another, by which $7 75 per 100 bushels was paid for hauling sand from the pit of the Patent Brick Company on the University grounds, and $3 50 per 100 bushels paid to the Company for the sand. He also testified that after the barracks had been completed over $4,000 worth of the sand had been dumped there and paid for, but was subsequently sold for $75.

GEN. SHERIDAN ON THE INDIAN QUESTION.

The following letter from Gen. SHERIDAN to Mr. KEIM, of this city, who is writing a book on Indian campaigns, is of interest at the present time:

CHICAGO, Ill., April 28.

DEAR SIR: I have carefully read the proofs sent me of your forthcoming book, Sheridan's Troopers on the Borders, and think well of it. I may say in reference to the management of the Indians, the reservation system is the only one offering any prospect of success. But all experience has shown that the wild Indian will not adopt it until he is forced to do so. All the tribes on the Northern Pacific coast had to be subdued and forced on to the reservations, which was accomplished between the years 1855 and 1860; then peace ensued. Latterly the same policy has been pursued in regard to the Comanches, Kiowas, Cheyennes and Arrapahoes. After the wild Indians are put upon the reservations, a strong military force will have to be kept there to protect the agents and others required in the work of cultivation; and also for the subordination of the Indians and their protection against the encroachments of the white settlers who otherwise would take possession of their lands.

Very respectfully yours,
P. H. SHERIDAN, Lieutenant-General.

THE GEORGIA BILL.

A meeting of the Reconstruction Committee of the House has been called for to-morrow, to take action on the Georgia bill. The Democratic members of the House hold a caucus, to-morrow, to decide what action they shall take on the measure as soon as it is reported.

THE REMAINS OF SECRETARY RAWLINS.

The Senate Military Committee decided today to report adversely on the resolution of the House providing that the remains of the late Secretary RAWLINS should be interred at the public expense. The admirers of the late Secretary are numerous here, and in view of his eminent public services this action of the Committee is by no means relished.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Public Lands Committee of the House considered Mr. CYRUS W. FIELDS' Pacific cable telegraph project today, and decided to ask its reference to the Committee on Foreign Affairs ....The findings in the Upshur Court-martial have been referred to the Secretary of the Navy, who is now considering the whole subject. The best opinion on the subject to-night is, that Commodore UPSHUR will be severely reprimanded, and probably suspended for some time....Chief-Justice CHASE returned here this morning from Richmond, Va.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

THE SAN DOMINGO TREATY.

Friends of the Dominican treaty are hopeful of its ratification, and say that the requisite vote of two-thirds of the Senate can now be obtained in its favor. Since the subject was first introduced Senators have been seeking information from all available sources, the library of Congress included. It is mentioned as a prominent fact that much of the opposition to annexation comes from foreign quarters.

TEXAS OFFICIALS.

The President has approved the bill which was introduced in the House by Mr. CLARKE, of Texas, providing that all persons elected to office in that State, and having the proper certificate of such election, shall have thirty days from April 30, within which to take, subscribe, and file the oath of office prescribed in the act of Congress approved March 30, 1870, for the admission of the State of Texas to a representation in the Congress of the United States.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

There was a meeting of about twenty Republican members of the House this morning to consider the questions connected with the Northern Pacific Railroad bill. The conclusion was to continue their opposition to its passage until its friends shall allow discussion and amendments to be offered, instead of insisting upon its passage under the operation of the previous question. One of the amendments they desire to offer is to limit the sale of lands to actual settlers in quantities not exceeding 160 acres, and at a price not over $2 50 an acre.

RECRUITS FOR TEXAS.

The Superintendent of the General Recruiting Service at New-York has been instructed to send 200 recruits, in detachments of convenient numbers, to Galveston, Texas, for assignment to duty in the Tenth Infantry.

NOMINATIONS.

The following nominations were sent in today: ALONZO ALDEN, to be Postmaster at Troy, N. Y.; CHARLES ASHER, to be Postmaster at Bowling Green, Ky.; WATSON R. WADSWORTH, to be Collector of Customs for the District of Tappahannock, Virginia.

EUROPEAN NEWS BY MAIL.

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAM-SHIP CITY OF BRUSSELS.

The Inman steam-ship City of Brussels, which left Liverpool April 23, and Queenstown April 29, arrived at this port yesterday. She brings news later by three days than was that received Friday by the Rhein.

A special telegram of the Eastern Budget, dated Vienna, April 26, says that the Austrian Government has declared its readiness to take part in any steps which may be determined upon by the Powers, in consequence of the murders in Greece, for demanding a guarantee against the recurrence of such atrocities.

The small-pox epidemic continued unabated in Paris, and the week preceding the sailing of steamer it caused 133 deaths, as compared with 103 and 113 in the two preceding weeks. According to the Gazette Medecale de Paris the disease prevailed extensively in the suburban villages of Chaville, Sévres and Levallois, inhabited principally by the washerwomen of Paris.

The foreign papers announce the death of General the Marquis DE LAWOESTINE, Governor of the Invalides, at the age of 84; of NESTOR ROQUEPLAN, journalist, at the age of 66; of Lord AUCKLAND, late Lord Bishop of Bath and Wells, at the age of 70; of BENJAMIN ANTIER, the senior dramatist of France, and one of the authors of Robert Macaire, at the age of 91, and of the Danish Lieut.-Gen. LUTTICHAN, who was Minister of War in Minister BANG'S Liberal Cabinet in 1855 and 1856.

The Chamber of Agriculture journal states that in Mid Kent, wheat on light, and also on wet land, is a thin and weakly plant, not up to an average year. Barley and oats, which have been put in unusually well, are coming up strong and healthy. But few beans sown in the district. Peas looking well. The work in the hop gardens is very forward. The plant is backward, with an appearance of flea, in some grounds doing injury. In consequence of the easterly winds and frosty nights, sheep keep is very short, and some flocks of ewes and lambs are suffering. Under the influence of dry weather, the fallows are being well prepared for swedes, rape and other seeds.

Official correspondence respecting the massacre in Greece had been presented to both Houses of Parliament yesterday. It consists of the dispatches exchanged between Lord CLARENDON and Mr. ERSKINE, the British Minister at Athens, and gives an account of the negotiations which took place in order to obtain the release of the captives. Mr. ERSKINE says that in an interview he had with the King, His Majesty showed the most eager desire to go and place himself in the hands of the brigands rather than that any of their prisoners should suffer harm. In his last dispatch Lord CLARENDON says he has no doubt Mr. ERSKINE has left no means untried to effect the liberation of the party, and induce the Greek Government to waive its "futile, and, under the circumstances, untenable objection" to grant the amnesty which was demanded. A brief postscript to this dispatch acknowledges the receipt of a telegram from Mr. ERSKINE, announcing the arrival at Athens of the remains of Mr. HERBERT and Mr. LLOYD, and their interment in the presence of the King and Queen and the diplomatic body.

Le Gaulois relates an incident which it says occurred a few days since at Nice. The Princess of MONACO, who, by the advice of the Emperor NAPOLEON, recently returned to her husband at Nice, determined for some reasons not known to quit him, and with her mother, took seats in a carriage forming part of the train for Paris. The Prince followed his wife, and desired her to alight, but she refused. He threatened to invoke the aid of the gendarmes, but the Princess was inexorable. The station-master, finding the hour of departure had already passed, ordered the carriage in which the Princess was seated to be disconnected, and dispatched the remainder of the train to Paris, leaving the Prince and his wife to arrange their differences.

A Pesth paper says that the Hungarian Archbishop HAYNALD recently had an audience of the Pope, at which he warmly urged His Holiness to abandon the dogma of Papal infallibility, and represented that the promulgation of such a dogma would only lead to a schism in the Church. The Pope replied as follows: "It is just for the purpose of preventing disturbances and dissensions in men's minds that the dogma of infallibility is necessary. Look where you will, you find strife and disputes among men; there are so many questions as to which they cannot come to an agreement. Hitherto there has been no one to settle disputes and decide doubtful questions by his sentence; but if Papal infallibility is once recognized, the successor of St. Peter will give his infallible judgment on all the questions of the day. Thus will men's minds be tranquillized, for they will know on which side lies the truth."

The Western Morning News says that on the evening of April 23, there was washed ashore at Perranporth, a broken piece of teak-wood about three feet long and about three or four inches wide. On one side it was painted blue, and on the other was rudely inscribed, apparently with a knife or chisel, the following in Roman capitals:

TY OF BOSTON IS SINKING FEB 11
M

The date was variously read by persons who had seen it; some considered that the two strokes after "Feb." represent the Roman notation of two; while other persons held that they are Arabic numerals for eleven. Of the word "City" all had been broken away except the lower part of the letters T and Y. Beneath the date is what looks like a rudely formed capital M, which is supposed may be the initial of the writer's name. The board is much battered and saturated. It appeared to have been in the water a considerable time, and was believed to be a genuine sea-waif. It remained in the possession of Mr. HICKEY, of the coast-guard, at Perranporth.

The following communication in relation to the cession of Gibraltar to Spain appears, translated into Spanish, in the Madrid Igualdad:

LONDON, April 1, 1870.—I have read with pleasure the friendly address which Mr. ANTONIO FERNANDEZ Y GARCIA has addressed to my colleagues, the members of the House of Commons. I can affirm, without danger of error, that the spirit of the House is favorable to the cession of Gibraltar, and this the more because the enlightened Press, which here interprets public opinion, declares the cession to be just and advantageous for both the Powers. In my opinion Mr. FERNANDEZ Y GARCIA would do well to treat the question in the only way in which it can be successfully dealt with. England cannot restore unconditionally—as Mr. FERNANDEZ Y GARCIA desires—the stronghold which she possesses at the entrance of the Mediterranean. I recall to mind that PHILIP V. repeatedly offered to give, in exchange for Gibraltar, one of the richest colonies which Spain was possessed in America. It will be well if modern Spain imitates the example of her first Bourbon ruler, and is ready to make some sacrifice in order to obtain the cession of Gibraltar. This at least is my opinion.

HENRY BULWER.

On April 27, before the Lord Chief Baron, Lord PENZANCE, and Justice KEATING, the question whether Lady MORDAUNT'S insanity was a bar to Sir CHARLES'S proceeding with his case was argued in the Divorce Court. Sergeant BALLANTYNE, Dr. SPINKS, Q. C., Mr. INDERWICK and Mr. COHEN were counsel for Sir CHARLES; and Dr. DEANE, Q. C., Mr. ARCHIBALD and Mr. COHEN appeared for the guardian ad litem. Sergeant BALLANTYNE contended that the Court had quite a discretionary power in the matter, and that there was no law to prevent the petitioner going on with the suit; if there were, great hardship would be done for a person might be guilty of adultery, and there might be conclusive proof of it, and yet because of the insanity of the other party, the aggrieved person had no remedy. Lord HARDWICKE held that a person who entered into a contract, and afterward became insane, was bound to carry it out. Marriage was no doubt prima facie a civil contract, though the parties could make a religious one, and the insanity of one of the parties could not be a bar to its being carried out. During the argument Lord PENZANCE observed that when the Court had first the power of dissolving marriages it was arranged for the protection of the public that condonation or collusion should be a bar to a divorce, and the Queen's Proctor was appointed to watch cases. By the late act the wife could give evidence as to acts which would be a bar to divorce, so that it was a very important point if the wife could not give such evidence owing to her insanity. Dr. SPINKS addressed the Court, arguing that insanity was no bar to the fulfillment of a contract. Dr. DEANE, Q. C., Mr. ARCHIBALD and Mr. COHEN followed on the other side, contending that it was unjust to call on an insane person to plead, and though much a one might be liable for necessaries in some civil actions, they could not possibly do so in suits like the present. On the following day Sergeant BALLANTINE asked that the order of Court make in March last should be abrogated, and that it should be left to the petitioner to take the initiative in further proceedings with the trial. The Court reserved its decision.

The Times says: "Now that all arrangements of the details of the long-talked-of sailing contest between the American schooner yacht Sappho and the English schooner yacht Cambria have been transferred from the hands of the owners of the two craft to two gentlemen representing them, with carte blanche authority, matters are progressing with perfect satisfaction, and in a way that must insure sailing—a consummation that would never have been brought about had Mr. ASHBURY and Mr. DOUGLAS retained the negotiations in their own hands, receiving, as each did, hourly advice on certain points from friends which made them feel as 'shifty as the wind.' Mr. DOUGLAS, the owner of the Sappho, has appointed Commodore JOHN LEE, of the New Thames Yacht Club, to act as his representative, and Mr. ASHBURY, the owner of the Cambria, has nominated a gentleman from the staff of the Royal Yacht Squadron for the Cambria. These gentlemen met at Cowes on April 26, and it was then agreed between them, as the basis of final arrangements to be completed in London today, that there shall be three matches between the two vessels to decide which shall be declared the victor. In the first and second matches they will be started on a windward course of sixty miles, and run back in each case. The third match will be over a triangular course. The first match, providing there is sufficient wind—from a seven to an eight-knot breeze—will be sailed on the 10th of May. The Sappho, in testing her sailing down the west Solent on Monday last, got ashore on a hardish spit, and will have to be placed in dock again at Cowes to ascertain what, if any, damage she has sustained. This has necessarily deferred the sailing of the first match from the earlier date originally proposed to that now named."

FRANCE.

M. Ollivier's Personal Circular to His Electors in the Var.

The Minister of Justice, in his quality of Deputy for the First Circumscription of the Var, has issued the following address to his electors:

PARIS, 25th April, 1870.

MY DEAR FELLOW-CITIZENS: It is said to be well to lop off from time to time dead-wood from trees in order that the living branches may be developed with greater vigor. The Emperor has just also cut away the dead portion of the Constitution in order that the latter may acquire fresh force and youth.

He will ask you on the 8th May whether he has done well. I advise you to reply eagerly to that appeal, and so arrive at the balloting urn with a bulletin bearing the word, "Yes!"

Some persons will try to induce you to answer "No!" but do not listen to them.

You have known me for a long time past, and many among you remember my speeches, when, at the commencement of my career, I went through your district. They will tell you that my voice was always raised against violence, anger and hatred, and that I then opposed revolutionary doctrines with as much resolution as I do now.

Do you know whence arises that consistency of my ideas? From the unity of my sentiments. In politics I have had but one passion—a love for the great and good people of France; and it is the desire of relieving their sufferings, of relieving their sufferings, of raising their intellectual, material and moral situation, which has made easy to me a resignation to the daily miseries of public life.

Who are the expiatory victims of revolutions? Is it not the people? When order is disturbed in the streets and business is in suspense, Providence does not cause any revolution in the elements; the sun continues to ripen the corn and the vine, and the rich are not in want. But, on the contrary, when desolation there is in the dwelling of the poor laborer; For that reason I have always detested revolutions.

Do not listen to those men who advise you to vote No! Remember that they have a majority on the 8th of May in the Var and throughout France. What would follow? They would exercise vengeance, would imprison and exile; would establish the social Republic and oppress the rich, as they promise in your meetings. And what after? The storm would soon pass away. The nation, ashamed of its momentary weakness, would rise up and say: Enough of anarchy and disorder! And, in their turn, those who had struck would be struck.

Suppose, on the contrary, that our friends triumph; how different all will be! A long period of security, confidence and rest will be reassured to us. The Monarchy and its Ministers, full of constitutional discussions, interpellations, menaces of disturbance, and predictions of revolution, will be able to take in hand, with even more solicitude than in the past, the means of avoiding the misfortune of those "who have nothing, without violating the rights of those who possess property; and we shall not have to fear those times of civil war when the sons, instead of closing the eyes of their fathers, have their own closed by them.

Go, then, my dear fellow-countrymen, to the vote with unanimity and ardor. At the last legislative elections, triumphing over the revolution by your free initiative, you gave to France an example which has been followed at Lyons and which will be imitated everywhere. Recommence that course for the plebiscite, unite, organize yourselves, and do not be intimidated by those who make up for the smallness of their number by the noise they make.

If their words were honeyed, I could understand that you might be beguiled. But how could you do otherwise than resist language so gross, expressive of meanness and insult—a worthy expression of materialist doctrines in which neither man's soul nor God has any place!

Send us a great majority. I shall receive it as a proof of your affection, and my means of serving you will thereby be increased. Receive, &c.,

EMILE OLLIVIER.

THE INDIANS ON THE WAR-PATH.

Necessity for Prompt Action to Prevent War—A Peace Convention Called—Delegates from all Parts of the Country Invited.

The Executive Committee of the United States Indian Commission, of which PETER COOPER is President, issue the following address to the American people calling for a Convention of delegates from all parts of the country to consider the question of reform in the administration of Indian affairs, and to take such action, if possible, as will be the means of preventing the Indian war that is now imminent:

TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

In accordance with a resolution unanimously adopted by a public meeting of the citizens of New-York, April 26, 1870, at the Cooper Institute, the Executive Committee of the United States Indian Commission gives notice, that a convention will be held May 18, at the Cooper Institute, New-York City, commencing at 10 A. M., and continuing until the business for which it is convened is completed.

We earnestly and cordially invite all persons throughout the country, who are desirous of reform in the administration of Indian affairs, of sustaining President GRANT in his well-known peace policy, of removing the enslaving and degrading ban of outlawry from the Indians, and of a final and complete settlement of this question upon the basis of law, equality, humanity and justice, to form auxiliary associations in their several localities, as speedily as possible, and to meet with us, on the 18th inst., by delegates or otherwise, to devise means for securing the object so dear to the heart of every true patriot in our land.

We are impelled to strenuously urge upon the people the necessity of such action, by the official assurance of the Honorable Secretary of the Interior that "there is imminent danger of general hostilities with the Indians along the whole border," a war which will involve the loss of thousands of lives and millions of dollars. The ground of this apprehension will be understood by the following extract from a communication of the same official, indorsed by the President:

"From our extreme northern boundary to the Mexican frontier we receive complaints from all the Indian tribes of what they declare to be a lack of faith on our part in carrying out the stipulations of treaties heretofore made with them, and redeeming the promises which, as they allege, induced them to consent to the peaceful construction of railroads to the Pacific coast. Major-General Gen. STANLEY reports from Dakota that he is ashamed longer to appear in the presence of the Chiefs of the Sioux, who inquire why we are not doing as we promised in 1867, and in their vigorous language aver that we have lied to them when telling of the benefits we intended to confer upon them."

Moreover, we are convinced that the Big Horn expedition involves most serious danger of collision, which must inevitably result in war. We are persuaded that a war under the circumstances will be regarded as dishonorable to our nation, and that the Indians only demand simple, even-handed justice as a condition of a permanent peace.

Gens. Harney, Sherman, Terry and Auger, U. S. A., Senator Henderson, Commissioner Taylor, Gen. Sanborn and Col. Tappan, all of the Indian Peace Commission, in their official report to the President, Jan. 8, 1868, say:

"Among civilized men, war usually springs from a sense of injustice. The best possible way, then, to avoid war is to do no act of injustice. When we have the same rule holds good with Indians, the chief difficulty is removed. But it is said our wars with them have been almost constant. Have we been uniformly unjust? We answer, unhesitatingly, Yes."

We believe there should be concert of action among those who desire reform, and a greater dissemination of information upon the subject of our Indian relations. We therefore repeat our invitation for the people to form auxiliary associations, and meet with us for a better understanding of this great national question, and the duties incumbent on us all in this crisis, as true lovers of our country.

For the Executive and General Committees of the United States Indian Commission.

PETER COOPER, President.
EDWARD CROMWELL, Secretary.

Centenary Year of Universalism—A Woman's Aid Association to be Formed—Meeting To-night.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The centenary year of Universalism in America has been made the occasion of a series of splendid pecuniary offerings to the denomination by societies and individuals. New churches are in process of erection, church debts are being liquidated, colleges and academies are receiving liberal endowments, while missionary enterprises are everywhere broadening their sphere of action. The Murray Fund, however, so named in grateful remembrance of the first preacher of the doctrine on this continent, is designed to be the grandest gift of all, the central offering, into which shall flow streams of gratitude from the entire Union. A helper to its complete triumph, the zealous and devoted women of the denomination have organized a Centenary Aid Association, which announces a series of earnest and enthusiastic efforts of assistance. They purpose holding a grand mass-meeting in this City, to-morrow (Tuesday) evening, at the Bleecker-street Universalist Church, Rev. E. C. SWEETSER pastor, and having secured an address from Mrs. MARY A. LIVERMORE, the fame of whose eloquence has preceded her, they will doubtless secure a crowded audience.

Fine Art Sale.

Mrs. S. B. CALDWELL'S collection of oil-paintings and engravings, now on exhibition at the Clinton Hall Art Galleries, will be sold by LEAVITT, STREBEIGH & CO., on Friday evening next. Among the paintings are a fine specimen by LEUTZE; "Our Future Generals," by J. G. BROWN; "Autumn Twilight," by KENSETT; "Bears on a Bender" and the "Mutual Surprise," by W. H. BEARD; "The Bell," by CASILEAR; "Sunday Morning in the Camp of the Seventh Regiment," by S. R. GIFFORD, and "The Genius of Music," by FRANCESCO SELMINI. Among the paintings of animals we notice HENRIETTA ROMMER'S fine picture, "Moving by Dogs," full of expression and good in drawing and color, and ERNUC ADAMS' "The Three Friends," which is equally worthy of notice. There are also in the collection a cabinet picture by MEYER VON BREMEN, several by WM. HART, a landscape by BIERSTADT, which is far superior to some of his later works, and two or three by WILLIAMSON, which are superior to most of this artist's productions.

CUBAN AFFAIRS.

News from the Puerto Principe Region—Fugitive Expeditionists—Court-Martials and Volunteer Outrages—The Killing of Volunteers.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HAVANA, Wednesday, May 4, 1870.

The Puerto Principe region, or, as it is generally termed, the region of the Camaguey, remains still the principal seat of war. That is to say, the public expects news from thence, principally, perhaps, because the Captain-General is there, and perhaps, also, owing to the fact that at one time the Cubans were strongest in that quarter. The news which is received in Havana from the Camaguey is extremely favorable to the Spaniards, but this is not astonishing, as we never receive any unfavorable news from Spanish sources, who would communicate, privately and officially, tidings of a grand victory, even if only one man had remained alive to tell the tale. Whenever the Spanish troops are defeated, which little accident happens occasionally, notwithstanding the silence of the Press and Government, we merely have a dull report of it at the time, and only learn the particulars weeks or months after. None of the journals have regular correspondents in the field, and if they had, the public would be none the wiser, as the Censor would take very good care that nothing unfavorable to the Spanish cause should be published. The news from Puerto Principe is all contained in two lengthy communications from Mr. FERNANDEZ, the Captain-General's Secretary, and gives a very clear and succinct Spanish account of what has taken place there within the past few days. The documents being very lengthy, I limit myself to making an extract giving their most important features, without vouching for the truth of all or any, although they present the appearance of truth and may be such. If the public does not place implicit confidence in the news furnished by the Government, the blame must be laid at its own door, as the instances of having been taken in by rose-colored versions are too numerous to mention. The present documents, however, present traces of truth. They begin with news received from Santa Clara, and stating that the Cubans commanded by IGNACIO AGRAMONTE, MAGIN DIAZ and BEMBETA, and numbering about eight hundred, had concentrated near Najara to attack and surprise the column of Major MONTANEZ, returning from Puerto Principe to Santa Cruz del Sur, but that he managed to get through easily and killed twenty-six of the enemy. The remainder of the document relates to the capture of the Prefect BETANCOURT, and includes a copy of a letter in which the Cuban Colonel JOSE INCLAN resigns his office, and demands only a private's place in the ranks of some regiment, giving as a reason for resigning, the intrigues and machinations existing in the army. On the 26th, fourteen armed men arrived with their families at Puerto Principe from Magarabomba. On the 27th the contraguerillas returned, bringing eighty-four persons, eleven prisoners and eighty horses, with their accoutrements, captured at Guanabo, where they also killed sixteen insurgents. Col. BENEGASSI, the Commander of Guaimaro, arrived at Puerto Principe on the 28th, reporting that all the troops were in good health, and that the Cascorro and Sibanica volunteers had celebrated the delivery of arms to them with great rejoicing. Four hundred and sixty persons had arrived at Guaimaro in two days, seeking the protection of the troops, and many more were expected, while the fortifications are being strengthened and increased in number. Twelve men, with arms, had also arrived at Puerto Principe. They formerly belonged to the Regiment Rey, but were captured by QUESADA at Sabana Nueva, together with the remainder of the detachment, who were executed. The lives of these men were saved through the intercession and strenuous efforts of that young Cuban hero and gentleman, BEMBETA, under whose command they served until lately. The resignation of IGNACIO AGRAMONTE as Commander-in-Chief is confirmed, and the position has been abolished, Gen. FRED. CAVADA having been appointed chief of operations, and BEMBETA Commanding-General for the Cinco Villas. Prefect BETANCOURT, alias Barbaras, and JOSE MARIA RAPETI, of Porto Rico, a subprefect, who had been captured a few days before, were executed. An intercepted letter of DOMINGO STERLING VARONA states that in the early part of April, MODESTO DIAZ lost 180 men by cholera in three days.

FUGITIVE EXPEDITIONISTS.

Within the past few weeks the Spanish papers have contained numerous paragraphs announcing that the Cuban leaders are wandering about the coast trying to escape. This report, at first discredited, is no longer doubted, as the departure of JORDAN furnished at least one proof, and now we have news of another. The Spanish gun-boat Soldado met or found a boat, apparently proceeding from the Cuban coast, at La Guajaba Key, or, as it is often styled, Guajaba Island. Provisions and other effects were found in the boat, and among the papers a passport to Gen. GOICOURIA to leave the country, and an appointment for the same gentleman as Ambassador to MEXICO, both being signed by President CESPEDES. According to other documents found in the boat, GOICOURIA'S companion was GASPAR AGUERO. It is a some what remarkable fact that CESPEDES chooses his Generals as Ambassadors—let me instance QUESADA, JORDAN and GOICOURIA—in other countries Generals remain at the head of their armies. The Soldado landed some men to register the key, and went after assistance, over a hundred men being now looking for GOICOURIA. The key being a very large one, it is difficult to find anybody hid on it, especially as in case of necessity the fugitives could cross over to Roman Key, and it is more than probable that some other boat was in waiting on the other side of the key to take off the fugitives.

COURT-MARTIALS

are still being held everywhere, and phlebotomy is actively carried on. FRANCISCO ESQUEMBRE, the Parish priest of Yaguaramas, of whose trial and sentence I have already written, was executed at Cienfuegos on the 30th ult. Pious persons made strenuous efforts to have him pardoned, but the attempt proved a failure. The most important court-martial, however, which has taken place for some time, owing to the notoriety it obtained, has just been held in Cardenas. Some time in March or April, 1869, two young Cubans named ESTEBAN PARODI and JOSE MARIA MORA were arrested on suspicion of being implicated in the revolution, and on being tried were sentenced to eight years' imprisonment each. The Judge who sentenced them was dismissed. Some very suspicious facts having come to light, the case was retried by the Supreme Court, and the accused absolved and ordered to be set at liberty. On the new Judge presenting himself at the jail to liberate them, the volunteers on guard not only refused to obey the order, but also threatened to kill the bearer of it, whose life was only saved at the time by the intercession of a Colonel of volunteers. The entire volunteer force of Cardenas flocked to arms, and threatened to kill the lawyer and Judge who had intervened in the case; only a rapid flight saved them, the volunteers remaining under arms, and sending a commission to see Havana to Gen RODAS, who was absent at the time. The Governor of Matanzas went to Cardenas, made a conciliatory speech to the volunteers, and promised them that the sentence of the Supreme Court should not be carried into effect, whereupon the volunteers dispersed. The result of this row and the appeasing of the volunteers were secured by the offering up of PARODI'S and MORA'S lives, for they will undoubtedly be executed. A few noble men among the volunteers themselves are, however, making efforts to have a petition signed asking that the young men be pardoned, as their execution will be a foul blot on the reputation of the Cardenas volunteers.

KILLING OF VOLUNTEERS.

Nearly every mail brings the information that in different parts of the country some volunteers have been killed, either in discharge of their duties, as at the Capitania del Horno, while attacking the enemy, or else by some bands of Cubans, who surprise them singly or in small groups. The latest case reported is the killing of five volunteers at Alvares, in the Sagua jurisdiction, a father, seventy-five years of age, and his four sons. The party who attacked these men numbered about forty, three of them whites and the rest negroes, and was commanded by a cousin of the murdered men. The other case is of a party of men composed of ten volunteers, ten regular soldiers and about forty more men, who were driving a herd of cattle from Juan Criollo to Sanoti Spiritus. On the road they were attacked by a Cuban force superior in numbers, commanded by CORRARANO and DORADO. The two Spanish officers, four volunteers and four soldiers, and eight others were killed, the Cubans attacking them with the machete, when the rest of the Spaniards, according to the Vos, had no other remedy than to run away, which they did with such a good effect as to arrive safely at Sanoti Spiritus on the following day. The Sanoti Spiritus paper adds that the Cuban chiefs DORADO, JUAN BENIGNO GOMEZ, GARCIA, and others have their families residing in the city, and that nevertheless they commit these barbarities without fear of retaliation, because they are satisfied that the Government forces would not act like them. This slur of the Vos is very contemptible, as it may be taken as a covert invitation to kill these families, and throwing out a hint that the above-named leaders killed women and children instead of killing soldiers and volunteers. Perhaps the Vos thinks that the people of Sanoti Spiritus deserve great credit for not having killed these families already, as if an inoffensive woman or helpless children were responsible for the acts committed by men. Too many innocent people have already fallen victims to the fury of both factions, without having recourse to the killing of women and children as acts of retaliation.

THE LANCERS AT WALLACK'S.

Capt. LEICESTER VERNON'S comedy of "The Lancers" was beautifully brought out at Wallack's last night, and the acting was in most respects highly acceptable to a numerous and fashionable audience. The dialogue and plot of the piece are rather of the whipped-syllabub order, but the first is always bright and sparkling, the second generally probable and interesting, and the effect on the whole is pleasant and refreshing. There are suggestions of more than one well-known play here and there in the course of the action, but "The Lancers" is a creditable literary production, and if not up to the mark of Mr. ROBERTSON'S brilliant comedies, it has a merit of its own of no commonplace order. We reserve a more detailed account of its quality for future publication, contenting ourselves for the present by recording that Miss MOORE and Miss MESTAYER, Mr. FISHER, Mr. WYNDHAM, and Mr. STODDART acquitted themselves admirably last evening, and with the exception of a slight slip of the tongue, into which, we regret to say, the latter gentleman was on one occasion betrayed, there was nothing to mar the agreeable impression of the performance. The costumes were the theme of warm approval, and "The Lancers" will, we doubt not, prove attractive for many nights to come.

BOOTH'S THEATER.

MORTON'S comedy of "The School of Reform" was acted at Booth's Theater last evening. It had not been heard in this City for fully five years, and is, in fact, not likely to enjoy frequent representations hereafter. In its original shape embracing five acts, "The School of Reform" is tedious enough, but at all events its story can be arrived at after a few hours' respectful attention. In its present condition, however, it loses by unintelligibility of plot that which it gains by compression of much wearisome dialogue. Even Mr. CLARKE'S versatility and talent—the former gift proven by a comparison of his personation of Bob Tyke with his comic performances, and the latter acquirement by the consistency and vigor of his rendering of the grief-stricken and repentant criminal—will not, we apprehend, give MORTON'S play a lengthened lease of new life. EMERY was the original Bob Tyke, we believe, and LYSANDER THOMPSON, whom the author of the piece declared to be its most satisfying representative, after EMERY, its most successful delineator in this country. Mr. CLARKE, though from record and report inferior to these artists, fills the part with great finish, and also with sufficient force in the dramatic scenes, which, as we need hardly say, do not touch the hearts of modern audiences as it was intended they should. Deep pathos is not to be donned as easily as lighter emotions; but perhaps an actor whose command over spectator's tears was exceptionally potent would find it difficult to impress one by, for example: the archaic morality of the climax of the second act. After the "School of Reform" had been interpreted, an amusing comedetta by JOHN BROUGHAM, entitled "Breakers Ahead," was played, Mr. CLARKE embodying one Babington Jones, with a ludicrousness of look, manner and attire too real not to be provocative of the heartiest merriment. The same bill is to be unchanged throughout this week.

FRENCH THEATER.

Mr. FECHTER acted in "Ruy Blas" at the French Theater, last evening. The house was filled by a very fashional audience, whose gloved hands were by no means chary of applause. As on the occasion of Mr. FECHTER'S first appearance at Niblo's, Mr. SHEWELL and Miss LECLERCQ were the artist's principal aids. "Ruy Blas," as acted by them, was fully referred to in the TIMES at that period. The same play is to be repeated tonight for the last time.

American Dramatic Fund Association.

The twenty-second annual meeting of the American Dramatic Fund Association was held at their office, No. 842 Broadway, yesterday afternoon. The annual reports made showed the following figures: Total number of subscribing members, 106; number of claimants during the year, 57; ten members died and five were ruled out. The receipts of the Association were $10,557 59 for the year ending March 31, while the expenditures for the immediate purposes of the Association, from the interest of the invested funds, were: Annuities, $2,272 45; to widows, $921 30; to sick members, $407 30; to one orphan, $18 41; funerals, $350. The total receipts of the Association since it organized, were $136,294 54; its total expenditures paid to aged and sick members and widows and orphans of members, $84,436 23; and the present invested capital amounts to $50,568 64. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: S. L. M. BARLOW, President: D. Kingsland, James Gordon Bennett, Jr., L. W. Jerome, James Bryce, Barney Williams, Trustees; John Brougham, H. Howard, F. Chippendale, D. Whiting, T. G. Hind, N. B. Clarke, W. B. Harrison, John G. Gilbert, J. H. Stoddart, H. Isherwood, W. Davidge, Theo. Moss, J. Moore, J. W. Wallack, D. C. Anderson, Directors; C. K. Mason, Treasurer; C. S. Bernard, Secretary, and the usual honorary officers.

The Murder in Mid-Ocean—The Case Argued.

Mr. CHARLES S. SPENCER, counsel for THOMAS H. JOHNSON, who is charged with the murder of EDWARD BARRUS on board of the ship Morning Light, when at sea, made an argument, yesterday, in the extradition proceedings before Commissioner OSBORN, in which he claimed that the evidence had merely shown the accused to be guilty of manslaughter, and that, therefore, he could not be extradited under the Ashburton treaty, which only recognizes murder and attempts at murder as extraditable offences. Mr. SPENCER also held that the Morning Light was not a British vessel, asserting that the testimony showed that she belonged to New-York, and that her registry as a British ship was only made to save her from capture by the Confederate Navy during the late war.

Mr. FRANCIS F. WURBURY, counsel for Mr. ARCHIBALD, the British Consul, replied that the language of the treaty was that all persons should be extradited who should be charged with the crimes enumerated, provided the evidence was sufficient to hold them for trial in the place or country where found. He said it was for the jury to decide the degree of the offence. Decision in the case was reserved.

FORTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Monday, May 9.

Mr. WILSON, from the Military Committee, reported with an amendment the bill for furnishing artificial limbs for disabled soldiers.

Mr. ANTHONY offered a resolution, to which he asked early attention of the Committee on Commerce, recommending the construction of a harbor of refuge at Block Island. Adopted.

OTHER BILLS PASSED.

Mr. WILLIAMS, from the Committee on Public Lands, reported with amendments the bill to incorporate the Kansas, Indian Territory and Gulf Railroad Company, and to enable the Missouri River, Fort Scott and Gulf, and the Leavenworth, Lawrence and Galveston Railroad Companies to construct a single track through the Indian Territory to the Gulf.

Mr. WARNER, from the same Committee, reported a bill extending the time for the reversion to the United States of the lands granted to Michigan to aid in the construction of the Pere Marquette and Flint Railroad.

Mr. WILSON, from the Military Committee, reported without amendment the bill to reimburse Kansas for moneys expended in raising and equipping militia for the suppression of the rebellion.

Mr. STOCKTON, from the Committee on Public Buildings, reported a bill to provide a building for a post-office, internal revenue office and pension office in Trenton, N. J.

REDUCTION OF TAXATION.

On motion of Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, the bill reducing taxation was taken up to afford Mr. MORRILL an opportunity of expressing his views in general on the subject, in view of his expected inability to be present when the subject shall be considered. He spoke two and a half hours.

INTEREST ON CERTIFICATES OF STOCK.

Mr. FENTON introduced a bill requiring the Secretary of the Treasury, national banks and other corporations or associations, to cause to be published annually a statement showing the amount of interest due upon certificates of stock issued by the United States, dividends, deposits and interest accruing from other sources which have been unclaimed for two years. Referred to the Committee on Finance.

BOUNTY CLAIMS.

Mr. WILSON, from the Military Committee, reported with an amendment the bill to extend time for the presentation of claims for additional bounty under the act of July 30, 1866.

THE APPROPRIATIONS—THE BUREAU OF EDUCATION.

The Senate, in Committee of the Whole, resumed the consideration of the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation bill, when sundry amendments reported by the Committee on Appropriations were agreed to. The amendments include an increase of the appropriation to the office of the Assistant Treasurer at New-York from $90,000 to $196,000, and to the office of the Assistant Treasurer at Philadelphia from $84,000 to $84,625. An amendment to reduce the appropriation for the Bureau of Education from $14,500 to $5,400, cutting off the provision for any other officers than a Commissioner and two clerks, was debated at length—Mr. MORRILL, of Maine, Mr. HOWELL and Mr. TIPTON speaking against the continuance of the Bureau, and Mr. FERRY, Mr. YATES, Mr. SUMNER and Mr. PATTERSON in favor of it. Without a vote, the Senate, at 4½, took a recess till 7½.

EVENING SESSION.

The Senate met at 7½, and adopted a resolution offered by Mr. SPRAGUE, calling upon the Secretary of the Treasury for a copy of a report, made to the Department by ANTHONY POLLOCK a few years ago, relative to the operations of the Bank of England and the Bank of France.

THE NIAGARA RIVER BRIDGE.

The House bill for the construction of a bridge across the Niagara River at Buffalo was objected to, on the ground that the width of the draw was not determined, but was left solely to the determination of the Secretary of War. Objection being made, the bill was laid over.

THE APPROPRIATIONS.

The Appropriation bill was then resumed, when the section relative to the Bureau of Education was informally passed over till to-morrow, owing to a very limited attendance of members. Numerous amendments, involving an increase in items of appropriation, were agreed to. The Senate Committee amendment for an increase of $300 in the salary of the Chief Clerk of the Navy Department, on the floor discussion, Mr. SHERMAN remarked that it had been proposed by high officers of the Government to combine the Secretaryships of War and Navy in one officer. His own opinion was that the office of the Secretary of the Navy could be dispensed with in view of the merely routine character of its duties. Last Summer the Department had run along very well under the charge of an Admiral of the navy. The amendment was laid over without action.

At 10 o'clock the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

After the reading of the journal Mr. FARNSWORTH moved a call of the House. Mr. ALLISON moved that the House adjourn. Mr. FARNSWORTH called for the yeas and nays on the motion to adjourn. Mr. ALLISON remarked that there was a general understanding that there would be no session today. Mr. FARNSWORTH denied that there was any such understanding. The motion to adjourn was agreed to by yeas 78, nays 55.

The House thereupon adjourned.

Frank Jones, the Alleged Bond Forger—Motion for His Discharge on Habeas Corpus—Bail Fixed at $2,000.

At the opening of the Court of Oyer and Terminer, yesterday morning, Judge BARNARD presiding, CHARLES S. SPENCER called up the adjourned motion on a writ of habeas corpus issued in the case of FRANK JONES, charged with the forgery of a number of bonds of the Atlantic and Great Western Railroad Company, and also with forging the name of JAY GOULD on the back of them as guarantor for the New-York and Erie Railroad Company. After the prisoner had been about two weeks in prison, one of his counsel, W. S. WOLF, obtained a writ of habeas corpus, returnable before Judge MONELL, of the Superior Court, which was discharged, and the prisoner remanded, on the ground that the Court would not entertain a motion for the prisoner's release pending a counter writ for examination. A subsequent writ was granted, returnable before Judge MCCUNN in Supreme Court, Chambers, which was discharged on the ground that the motion was res adjudicata, having been already heard and decided by Judge MONELL. The present writ was then served out, and on coming up for argument before Judge DAVIDSON, the hearing was remitted to the Court of Oyer and Terminer. The motion was to discharge, on the ground that no offense had been committed; or, to admit to bail in a reasonable amount.

Mr. CHARLES S. SPENCER and W. S. WOLF appeared for the prisoner, and read affidavits of officers of the Atlantic and Great Western Company, setting forth that, though the originals of the bonds alleged to have been forged were printed, yet they had never been perfected or formally issued, but on the contrary, had been canceled and forwarded to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, at Washington; that they were of no value, and were no evidence of issues of bonds against either the Atlantic and Great Western or the Erie Company; also, that the alleged forged bonds were incomplete and in a non-negotiable form, having neither seal or revenue stamps attached. They contended, therefore, that no forgery could be committed of the original bonds, because they were of no value; and if of any value the forgery was still incomplete because of the absence of a seal and stamp on the alleged forgeries. It was claimed, moreover, that the prisoner had received the bonds in his faro bank, without knowing their character.

Judge BARNARD was of opinion that even admitting all that counsel claimed as true, the prisoner was still guilty of a misdemeanor in attempting to obtain money by the use of a false token.

After some further discussion Judge BARNARD fixed the bail of the prisoner, and his alleged accomplice, RIGGS, at $2,000 each, and in the meantime dismissed the writ, remanding the prisoners.

Another Misplaced Switch on the Erie Railroad—Almost a Disaster.

A most serious accident was prevented on the Erie Railroad yesterday, by the coolness and presence of mind of the engineer and brakeman of the Orange express train. The train reached Suffern at 8½ A.M., and there struck a

A SAFE INVESTMENT.

First Mortgage Bonds of the Chicago, Cincinnati & Louisville Railroad Company.

These bonds are part of the first and only issue of the Company for $1,000,000, covering its entire property, and are at the rate of $13,700 per mile. Of the whole amount $600.000 have been already placed, leaving but $400,000 to be sold. They are 7 per cent. coupon bonds due in 1887, interest payable 1st January and July in New-York. The Road is in operation. It is 73 miles long, extending from La Porte on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern to Peru, where it connects with the Toledo, Wabash and Western and the Peru and Indianapolis Roads. It runs through one of the finest sections of Indiana, and makes a connecting link in the best through line from Chicago to Indianapolis, and thence to Cincinnati and Louisville.

We confidently offer these bonds as a desirable security to investors, AS THE NET EARNINGS OF THE ROAD FROM THE OPENING HAVE BEEN IN EXCESS OF THE INTEREST ON ITS BONDED DEBT, AND ARE CONSTANTLY INCREASING. Besides it is designed to extend the Road to Lake Michigan at New Buffalo or Michigan City the coming season, which will also greatly increase its earnings.

Most of the delegates elected on Saturday evening last responded in person, and among the leading Tammany men present were Peter B. Sweeney, Wm. M. Tweed, Controller Connolly, Mayor Hall, Nathaniel Jarvis, Speaker Hitchman, Thomas C. Fields and others. Grand Sachem TWEED called the Convention to order, and congratulated the delegates upon the harmony that now prevailed in the wigwam, and at the same time gave a slap at the ingrates who, after having been taken into the confidence of the party and elevated to place and power, had treacherously gone to work to break the old organization, and even coalesced with the life-long enemies of Democracy to accomplish their purpose. He exhorted the Convention to be vigilant in promoting the success of the ticket to be nominated here, as well as the ticket nominated at Rochester for the higher Court. Let us show, said he, to our friends in the rural districts that when they say the word, Tammany is ready to obey. In conclusion, he prophesied the triumphant election both of the Court of Appeals ticket nominated by the Democracy and the tickets to be nominated here today.

Mr. GENET moved that inasmuch as "Big Judge" CONNOLLY had arrived, for once, in time, he be called upon to preside over the Convention. The motion was unanimously carried, and the "Big Judge" waddled up to the desk amid the applause of the Grand Sachem as the "great walkist." Messrs. FIELDS, SHANDLEY, COX, SCHIRMER and HITCHMAN were elected Secretaries, and in response to a call of the roll by Mr. HITCHMAN the delegates presented their credentials. The Convention then went into a ballot for Judges of the Court of Common Pleas. Only one was nominated, which contained the names of HAMILTON W. ROBINSON, JOSEPH F. DALY and RICHARD L. LARREMORE, for the full term, and CHAS. H. VAN BRUNT for the unexpired term of Judge BRADY. At the close of the balloting Mr. HITCHMAN announced that each candidate on the ticket had received 237 votes, and the Chairman declared them all nominated unanimously.

On motion of Senator NORTON the Convention then went into a ballot for Judges of the Marine Court—the ballot being cast by ward delegations to save time. The result of this ballot was that the three candidates—GEO. SHEA, WM. H. TRACY and P. J. JOACHIMSEN—received 237 votes each, and were declared unanimously nominated. The Convention then adjourned until this evening, when nominations for Aldermen will be made. It was expected that the Aldermanic ticket would be nominated at the same time as the Judicial ticket, but the leaders were not able to complete the "slate" in time. It is said that the ticket will be finally agreed upon at 4 o'clock this afternoon over a bottle (or bottles) of wine at DELMONICO'S.

THE COMMON PLEAS TICKET.

The ticket put forward by Tammany for Judges of the Court of Common Pleas is regarded by the legal profession as a very good one, and creditable to the party.

HAMILTON W. ROBINSON is a lawyer of long standing and uniformly good repute in this City. He was formerly a law partner of JOHN VAN BUREN, and for the last ten years has done a very large referee business, giving eminent satisfaction, and winning the entire confidence of lawyers and litigants in his fairness and impartiality.

JOSEPH F. DALY, the second name on the ticket, is a young lawyer of rare promise, and, although not so generally known to the profession as Mr. ROBINSON, bears the reputation among his acquaintances of being a man of exceedingly clear intellect, quick perception and, for one of his age, extensive knowledge of the law. He has been for some years one of the counsel for the Citizens' Association, and was unanimously recommended by the Association for a place on the ticket. He is not a relative of CHAS. F. DALY, the venerable Chief Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, but his friends think he has the elements within him which will do no discredit to his namesake, or to the high reputation of the Court over which he has so long presided.

RICHARD L. LARREMORE, the last name on the ticket for a full term, is well known as the President of the Board of Education, and as a lawyer in successful practice in this City. In addition to his legal qualifications for the position, he has the politeness and gentlemanly bearing, the urbanity and suavity of manner which are too often lacking in our Judges, and he can scarcely fail to become one of the most popular men on the Bench in this City.

CHAS. H. VAN BRUNT already holds a seat on the Common Pleas Bench, to which he was appointed by Gov. HOFFMAN in January last, when Judge BRADY resigned from the Common Pleas to take his place upon the Bench of the Supreme Court. He is nominated to fill Judge BRADY'S unexpired term, which will be four years from the 1st of January, 1871. The terms of the other Judges are fourteen years, in pursuance of the new Judiciary article of the Constitution adopted at the election last Fall.

THE MARINE COURT TICKET.

The ticket nominated by Tammany Hall for the Marine Court is also a fair one, and much above the average of the judicial nominations of the City Democracy for a few years past.

GEO. SHEA, the first on the list, is a lawyer, well and favorably known to the profession in this City. He once occupied the position of Corporation Attorney, and was also at one time a law partner of CHAS. O'CONOR. He has long been a leading man in the Mozart Hall organization, and his appearance on the Tammany ticket, at this time, is one of the mysteries which politicians alone can explain.

WM. H. TRACY is a fair lawyer, a resident of the Thirteenth Ward, and has been one year a member of the Assembly.

P. J. JOACHIMSEN has long been known as a prominent member of the New-York Bar, and formerly held the position of Assistant United States District-Attorney. He is in no way inferior to any of the men whom he will have for associates on the Marine Court Bench, and his nomination will tend to elevate the character of that not very lofty judicial tribunal.

Union Republican General Committee—Preparations for a Ratification Meeting.

The Union Republican General Committee met last evening corner of Twenty-second-street and Broadway, Hon. JOHN COCHRANE in the Chair. Considerable debate arose on a motion to take from the table the report of the Special Committe against a ratification meeting.

A communication had been previously received from the German Republican Central Committee announcing the appointment of a Committee of four to confer with this Committee, which communication had been referred to the Executive Committee. Some discussion ensued on the question of renting a hall for the use of the Committee during the ensuing year, which resulted in the Committee renewing their instructions to the Special Committee to hire the Twenty-third-street hall, provided the owner of that hall will take the present hall off the hands of the Committee. The meeting then adjourned.

The election on Staten Island under the new charter is creating considerable excitement among the islanders. Last night, in the various wards, meetings were held and delegates nominated to the Convention to be held on Wednesday. In some of the wards candidates were chosen for Village Trustees. In the Second Ward RUDOLPH KEPPEL received the nomination; in the Fourth, BENJAMIN BROWNE; the Eighth, THEO. E. H. MEYER, and Squire DOYLE in the Sixth. Judge GARRETT received the nomination for Police Justice. The meeting for the nomination of Mr. BROWNE, which was presided over by the County Treasurer, MORTON C. DE NYE, was numerously attended. INTERESTING QUESTION OF MARINE INSURANCE.

Richard A. Atkinson et al. vs. Great Western Insurance Company.—This was an action to recover $16,029, with interest, as the value of ninety bales of cotton lost at sea, insured by defendant, on a running policy, and shipped at Augusta, Ga., by way of Charleston, for Liverpool, in 1868. From Augusta it was conveyed by the South Carolina Railroad to the City of Charleston, and there shipped on board the bark Victoria for Liverpool. The master of the bark stowed it on deck instead of below, and when at sea having encountered a heavy storm, was ordered to throw it overboard. This action of the Captain and officers of the ship, counsel for plaintiff claimed, amounted to barratry, and thereby made the defendant liable, especially as they had proved that an agent of the plaintiff had remonstrated against shipping the cotton on deck. Defendant set up that subsequent to the shipment at Augusta, the defendant, at the request of plaintiffs, delivered to them certain certificates which defendant claimed took the place of the original policy, and covered the property on its voyage from Charleston to Liverpool, the voyage from Augusta to Charleston having been completed without loss or injury to the property, and that such certificate was negotiable, and never had been returned to defendant. Furthermore, that the cotton was stowed on deck with the knowledge of plaintiffs or their agents, and without the knowledge of the defendant. These constituted the material points of the testimony, at the close of which counsel for the defendant moved to dismiss the complaint on the ground that the act of the Captain in allowing the cotton to be stowed on deck without the knowledge or direction of defendant, did not in law constitutive barratry, or render the Company liable for the loss.

Judge VAN BRUNT denied the motion, at the same time directing the jury to find a verdict pro formâ in favor of plaintiff, the question of law to be heard in the first instance at General Term. Verdict for plaintiff, with interest, $19,261 81.

Martin & Smiths for plaintiff; Joseph W. Choate for defendant.

MARINE COURT—PART I.

Before Judge Gross and a Jury.

CARELESS BLASTING.

Dennis Leahy vs. John Kingsley.—This action was brought to recover the sum of $500 for damages alleged to have been done to the house No. 321 East Fortieth-street, owned by plaintiff, by the careless blasting of the defendant. The defendant was the contractor for opening Fortieth-street, from Second to First-avenue. The plaintiff produced evidence showing that on the 4th of December, 1869, the defendant blasted rock so carelessly that stones were thrown upon the roof of his house, 1,200 feet distant, and that the house was greatly shaken by the concussion, and the cellings and other portions of it damaged. The defense was a general denial. A motion to dismiss the complaint, on the ground that no negligence had been proven, was made and denied. The jury rendered a verdict for plaintiff for $250.

G. Sloyne Carpenter for plaintiff; Thomas Dunphy for defendant.
